GIGANTIC ARMAMENTS RACE IN THE PACIFIC

Labour Accuses British Policy

Mr. Arthur Henderson, who is contemplating resigning the Presidency of the Disarmament Conference, shown with Mr. George Lansbury.

HOW NADIR SHAH WAS KILLED

FIVE BULLETS AT CLOSE RANGE

ACT OF REVENGE

London, Nov. 13. According to information just received in London, the murder of King Nadir of Afghanistan was committed at a school prize-giving ceremony, on the anniversary of the execution of Ghulam Nabi presumably from motives of revenge.

King Nadir, who was accompanied by the present King and the Minister for war, was killed instantly, five shots being fired at him while he was speaking to the students. The murderer was Abdul Khalid, who was arrested immediately.

He had previously been under arrest, with his father, as being implicated in a plot against the late King in November last, but was pardoned.

Khalid's father was a servant of Ghulam Nabi, a prominent adherent of ex-King Amanullah, by whom he was appointed Ambassador in Angora in 1929. In the following year, Ghulam Nabi was dismissed by King Nadir. He returned to Afghanistan in 1932 and was executed shortly afterwards.

When the murder took place last week the Prime Minister, the Foreign Minister and the Trade Minister were on a tour in the Northern Provinces of Afghanistan, to attend the opening of a new road from Kabul to Mazarikhalid. These Ministers at once telegraphed their allegiance to the new King.

KING'S CONDOLENCES.

An expression of the condolence of King George on the assassination of the late King, and good wishes to King Muhammad Zahir Pasha, on his accession, were conveyed to the Afghan Minister last week, and in a personal message His Majesty said:—"I am profoundly shocked by the tragic news of the traitorous and dastardly assassination of His Majesty Nadir Pasha Ghazi, your august father, and I hasten to express my detestation of this abominable crime and my heartfelt condolences to the family of His Majesty and the whole Afghan nation in the sorrow and grievous loss sustained through this deplorable event."

Attention is drawn to the fact that the Cathedral Restoration Fund closes to-morrow.

KEEN DEBATE IN COMMONS

INCREASED DEFENCES IN AUSTRALIA

FEAR OF JAPANESE AGGRESSION

LONDON, NOV. 13. THE DEVELOPMENT OF A GIGANTIC ARMAMENTS RACE IN THE PACIFIC HAS BEGUN BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN, PARTLY AS A RESULT OF BRITISH NAVAL PREPARATIONS, ACCORDING TO LABOUR M.P.s WHO ATTACKED THE GOVERNMENT'S DISARMAMENT POLICY TO-NIGHT.

A somewhat sensational announcement was made during the debate to the effect that Mr. Arthur Henderson is on the verge of resigning the office of President of the Disarmament Conference.

It was at first understood that Mr. Henderson had already decided to take the step, but Sir Stafford Cripps read a message from the Geneva correspondent of the Daily Herald in which Mr. Henderson stated that he had not decided to resign, but felt that unless the present very unsatisfactory situation was changed, he could not continue as President of the Conference.

MR. HENDERSON DISAPPOINTED

The Labour Party's vote of censure on the Government's disarmament policy provided a keenly interesting debate.

The Labour proposals included the total abolition of all weapons prohibited to Germany, international control of aviation, suppression of the private manufacture of arms, and the creation of an international police force.

FAR EASTERN FEARS.

Mr. Wallhead, one of the principal Labour spokesmen, asserted that Australia and New Zealand, after conferring with Canada and the Imperial Defence Committee, had begun to strengthen their defences on their Japanese side against possible attack.

He pointed to the fact that British warships (a destroyer flotilla) had been ordered to Australia to strengthen their defences.

He declared that as a result of this policy, Japan and the United States had begun a gigantic armaments race.

TRAGEDY OF DISARMAMENT.

Sir Stafford Cripps, commenting upon Mr. Arthur Henderson's expression of disappointment, declared that the statement showed that the Disarmament Conference had failed.

In the opinion of the Labour Party, said Sir Stafford, the tragedy of the Disarmament Conference really started with the Sino-Japanese dispute.

The Government failure to take action in that dispute caused the first setback to the hopes of disarmament.

WRONG POLICY.

The Government pursued entirely the wrong policy in regard to Japan's invasion of Manchuria. The Government should have adopted a positive policy and should have urged the League to take immediate steps upon the entry of Japanese troops into Manchuria.

The re-armament of the United States and the action of Australia and New Zealand in strengthening their armaments all arose from the refusal of the British Government to initiate action against Japan.

EUROPEAN PROBLEM.

Sir John Simon, replying, declared that it was completely fallacious to suppose that the other Powers were attempting to impose upon Germany in the first instance what had been called a trial period.

He emphasised that all other countries, under the British Convention would be bound not to increase their armaments and France would effect a very considerable reduction in her military strength.

The Government still hoped that German equality might be established by cutting down other armaments as closely as possible to the present German level. The (Continued on Page 7.)

SOME BRIGHTER CRICKET.

Brighter cricket was seen in the Interport this morning, A. W. Hayward batting in great style, putting on eighteen runs in as many minutes before being caught.

In 20 minutes play, Hongkong's score had been carried from 149 to 180 for 7.

DOWN ON THE FARM

MR. WALLACE'S FORECAST

OFFICIAL CONTROL NEXT YEAR

Chicago, Nov. 13. Complete control by the Government of America's farm land, with only the rich soil permitted to be used for the purposes of agriculture, was the amazing forecast made to-day by Mr. Wallace, the Secretary of the Agriculture Department, in an address here.

Mr. Wallace said that the amount of acreage under wheat would by official control be considerably reduced, the remainder of the land being devoted to forestry, recreation grounds and residential areas.

He added that the spectacular things that the Administration had done up to the present in 1933 were only a faint foreshadowing of some of the things which were ultimately necessary.

He predicted that the 1934 acreage of harvested crops would perhaps be thirty-five million less than in recent years.—Reuter.

CREDIT CRISIS THREATENING

U.S. ADMINISTRATION'S DIFFICULTIES

New York, Nov. 13. Washington observers see the Government approaching a credit crisis with currency inflation nearer and dollar devaluation certain.

Government bonds were stronger to-day, but their position is daily becoming more critical. Negotiations between representatives of Russia and the United States are continuing. This has had a steady effect on the markets.

In expectation of impending inflation, farmers are refusing to cut their acreage which would enable them to take advantage of the 10 cents government loan. They feel that if they reduce their plantings that they will not receive the full benefit of the expected rise in commodity prices.

Unemployment and public works are at present the most important problems which the Government has to face and effort along these lines is being intensified.

Generally, business is slowly improving.—Per Swan, Culbertson and Fritz.

U.S. NAVY TO BE "DRY"

MAY GET BEER LATER

Washington, Nov. 8. Secretary of Navy Claude Swanson announced to-day that despite the repeal of prohibition, the Navy will continue dry for the time being.

Perhaps at a later date it will allow 8.2 beer.—United Press.

F. A. CUP DRAW

LEAGUE TEAMS IN FIRST ROUND PROPER

MANY AMATEURS THROUGH

London, Nov. 13.

The draw for the first round proper of the English Football Association Cup—the world's premier soccer competition—was made in London this evening.

Teams of the northern and southern sections of the Third Division went into the hat together with some of the well known Amateur League clubs, as well as Southern League and Kent League teams.

Of the better known amateur clubs, five enjoy home draws. Ilford entertain Swindon, King's-tonham receive Bristol City, Cheltenham have Barnet as visitors, Gillingham have to travel to Oxford City, and Dulwich Hamlet are at home to Newport.

A thrilling match will be seen at Northfleet, where the "Cementers" Southern League "side will receive Dartford, who are also enjoying a good season in the Southern League.

Hayes and Epsom Town, two other amateur clubs, have to make journeys, Hayes going to Bournemouth to meet the Third Division team and Epsom visiting Clapton Orient.

Among the clashes between first class teams, the most interesting include Northampton and Exeter at Northampton, Crystal Palace and Norwich at the Palace, Watford and Reading on the former's enclosure, and Cardiff City and Aldershot.

Some equally keen matches are promised among the Northern clubs, where league records are likely to count for very little.

Finance paramount. To quote the words of an official of Imperial and International Communications, "although the matter was on the table some two years ago, circumstances which have since arisen have caused it to be held in abeyance. The matter is a financial one, and until the outlook is better than it now is, there is little likelihood of the link between London and Hongkong being provided."

SCHEME FOR LINK WITH LONDON

IN ABEYANCE

DEPRESSION STAYS ENTERPRISE

AN OFFICIAL STATEMENT

(Telegraph Special.)

Although technically feasible, radio telephone communication between Hongkong and London, through purely British channels, is unlikely to be established in the near future, according to information secured in London by the Telegraph from the General Post Office and Imperial and International Communications, Ltd.

There was some prospect of such a service some two years ago, before the worst effects of the depression were felt, when the Hongkong Telephone Co., Ltd., was interesting itself in the idea, but at the moment the matter is in abeyance.

When the scheme eventually materialises, it is most probable that Hongkong will work through Singapore, after a station has been established at that port. At present, however, the heavy costs of providing the service, together with the probable lack of steady traffic for a time, place the project in the realm of an undertaking not yet commercially worth while.

CO-OPERATION NECESSARY.

Enquiries made at the Publicity Department of the G.P.O., show that there is a desire on the part of the postal authorities to extend a radio phone service to the Far East; indeed, the G.P.O. would welcome any move in this direction, provided it were financially sound. It was pointed out that the feasibility of such a scheme had been shown by the fact that the tourist liner Belgenland, whilst in Hongkong harbour some years ago, had experienced no difficulty in getting into communication with London.

Hongkong's best plan, it was pointed out, would be to work through some other station, such as Singapore or Shanghai.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL.

According to Imperial and International Communications, Ltd., it might be the best method eventually for the Hongkong end to be operated through the Government Broadcasting Station, although the Company would be prepared to work in with any reputable concern which could work on a reasonable co-operative basis.

With regard to the probable rates, the General Post Office states that, after a certain limit, distance is not a factor; for example, the rate between London and Australia is the same as for that between London and Canada.

22 PER MINUTE.

This rate is 22 per minute's use of the service, and Hongkong would most likely come under the same scale. Eventually, however, the rates would most likely come down, when increased traffic warrants the step.

A factor which would greatly help in hastening the inauguration of the service would be the prospect of a "field", which could be served through Hongkong, such as important cities in China, but until there is the probability of such an opening, it is felt in London that there can be little likelihood of British service becoming feasible.

FINANCE PARAMOUNT.

To quote the words of an official of Imperial and International Communications, "although the matter was on the table some two years ago, circumstances which have since arisen have caused it to be held in abeyance. The matter is a financial one, and until the outlook is better than it now is, there is little likelihood of the link between London and Hongkong being provided."

Show Patience Toward Children Who Commit Offences Unknowingly

By Olive Roberts Barton

Victor had a ball. It was a red rubber ball that took both his little hands to hold.

His daddy was a baseball fan. Of all Victor's toys he favoured the red ball the most. He taught him how to throw it. When it went out in the street he would shout, "Atta boy! You scored a run that time, old fellow! Come here, Mom, and see how Vicky can throw."

When it hit somebody on the head he would rear and laugh. "That's it, kid. Sock 'em!"

Later he bought a smaller ball so Victor could hold it in one hand and throw.

Moreover, he would pick up anything handy, a teddy bear or what not and give it a toss. "Catch, Vicky!" The game of pitch and catch went on incessantly in that house.

Running Into Trouble.

One day Victor found a croquet ball on a neighbour's lawn. He picked it up and threw it at Charley and it hit him on the head.

Charley went in screaming. Out came Charley's mother and ordered the visitor off the premises.

When he got home his mother scolded. He ought to know better than to hurt another boy.

Two-year-and-a-half-old Victor wondered what it was all about.

Another day he found his daddy's old baseball. It rolled out in the street and down a sewer. His father was furious. He talked turkey to his offspring about not touching things that didn't belong to him and said he had a good notion to whip him.

Again Victor wondered what all the fuss was about.

Still another day he was visiting at his aunt's and appropriated the spherical paperweight with the snow-storm inside that stood on her desk. That prize had stood Aunt Helen five dollars at an antique shop, therefore how did she feel when she saw Victor trip on the porch tiles, the crystal ball fly out of his hands, and split neatly in two?

Perplexing to Youngsters.

It was Sunday and the whole family was there. They all acted as though Victor had taken an axe and killed the cat. He was the meanest little devil alive. He was just everything. And this time he got whipped. That helped everybody a lot. They all felt better. The five-dollar bill had been avenged.

But again Victor didn't know what it was all about.

The point is obvious. The boy associated a ball with one idea. To have it in your hands, to throw it, or to catch it. He didn't associate it with purloining property, or breakage, or hurting people.

It is easy to see how perplexing it must be to little tots to get their values straightened out.

This is why we need a good bit of patience. We blame them for breaking principle when their offences are often quite innocently meant.

CHAPTER XXV

"The Cottage by the River"

For a few seconds they stared at the black spot where once a light had glimmered. Then Napoleon turned to his companion and said: "Haven't you better finish your story, old chap—and in double-quick time? You've brought me here, but you've not told me why even yet. Have we got to storm the jolly old cottage—or what?"

"I don't know what we ought to do," muttered Guy. "But I'll tell you the position—or, at least, what the position was when I left it—and then we can decide."

"I wish Sefton were here," replied Napoleon. "He can work these things out, but I'm no more good at them than you are. What is the position?" All at once he seized Guy's arm, and pulled him towards a bush. "If they've put out their light to try and get a look at us," he whispered, "we'd better not give 'em a chance."

"They couldn't see all this distance," returned Guy. "Still, you're right—we've got to be careful. When that lunatic chap reached the cottage, he didn't go in, but crouched down outside. So I crouched down, too. There were voices inside. I couldn't hear what they said—I wasn't close enough. But the other fellow seemed to hear bits here and there, for every now and then he muttered, and shook his fist, and did all the melodramatic stuff. Then the voices grew louder, and a fine old quarrel seemed to be developing. The madman got excited, too, and once gave an exclamation of rage. I tell you, it was most uncanny."

"No need to confine it to the past tense," murmured Napoleon. "The voices stopped as soon as the madman exclaimed, and—yes, I'd forgotten that—the light was put out suddenly, just as it is now. I dare say they peeped out of the window, but both the mad chap and I squeezed ourselves away so they couldn't spot us. And then someone came to the front door, and looked out."

"Did you get a view of him?" asked Napoleon.

"Only a very vague one. A bit of an outline, you know, of his head."

"What sort of an outline?"

"Oh, I don't know. He seemed to be wearing a sort of merchant service cap or something."

"A merchant service cap?" interposed Napoleon, and groaned softly. "Oh, my God! This is getting almost too lovely to bear!"

"What do you mean? Do you know the fellow?"

"Not yet. And I don't want to. Well, proceed. This gentle, amiable, blue-eyed seaman stood at the door—"

"And then he went in again, and the quarrel recommenced. I did hear a sentence or two then. Nothing I could piece together, though. One of 'em shouted, 'I tell you, it's got to end to-night—we've got to settle the thing before sunrise.'"

"The sun will rise in about an hour," muttered Napoleon.

"And then another thing I heard was, 'You've bungled it! That was another voice. 'You've bungled it. Even if we do, what are we going to do with—' I lost the rest of it, but I thought I heard the word 'upstairs.' Then this mad fellow crept up to the front-door and tried it, but it was locked. He seemed quite demented. Instead of returning, he crept on round the place, as though he were looking for something."

"And you crept after him?"

"I did. He poked about, and at last entered a sort of barn or out-building."

"And you followed him in?"

"No, thank! I waited under a bush—"

"History repeats itself!"

"Shut up interrupting. I waited till he came out, and—when he came out—"

"The speaker shuddered slightly. "—when he came out he was carrying a hatchot."

"Good Lord," granted Napoleon. "And—or—do you suppose he's still wandering about with the hatchot?"

"Don't ask me! It was clear he wanted to get inside with the hatchot."

"Then it was clear you should have stopped him."

"Not a bit. Firstly, the result would have been a toss-up, and, secondly, they might have shot me."

"You suppose they have been on my side? It was a sort of three-cornered affair, with me the only one that stood for law and order. It wasn't one to one, it was three to one, and I decided to bunk for my life. On my way back a most delightful goodness knows how long I spent chasing him, or what he was up to. Then we bumped into you—and here we are."

"Here we are," agreed Napoleon. "Though where we soon shall be is quite another matter. I suppose we'd better go on, eh? It's two to three now, instead of one to three. Or, if one of the three has been murdered, as is very probable, it'll be two all—or, rather, two against two and a hatchot. Come along, Guy, let's get it over. I don't suppose we could ever hold up our heads if we turned tail now—and I've got to hold up my head. We must go and stop the bloodshed—even if it's only our own."

"Cautiously they left the pleasant concealment of the bush, and followed the track to the river bank. The cottage stood on the further bank, and the river barely more than a creek, was traversed by a small bridge. They felt distinctly unhappy as they crept over the bridge, but evidently they had not been seen, and a few moments later they found themselves outside a low hedge that enclosed the cottage grounds. Through a gap in the hedge, they saw a dark figure crouching. Its outline was faint, but unmistakable. So was the outline of something which the figure held in his hand."

"He's got some patience," whispered Guy. "Shall we pounce upon him?"

"No, not for a minute," Napoleon whispered back, as low voices rose from the cottage, and the light suddenly reappeared again. "I'd like to hear a bit of that conversation going on in there before we interrupt it."

They crept a little closer, and now the voices grew more distinct. The window of the room in which the speakers were standing was evidently open a crack.

"I know it wasn't anything!" growled a deep voice. "Just the wind."

"Ay, maybe you're right," came another voice, also deep and gruff. "The wind's getting up—and that'll suit us, I'm thinking."

"How?" demanded the first voice. "It'll mean a rough trip—and I ain't a good sailor."

"But it'll deacon sound, Joe," said the second voice. "And that's what we want, isn't it?"

"Yes, there'll be the hell of a sound," grunted the speaker addressed as Joe. "I'm sure you're right about this even yet, skipper."

"Oh, for God's sake, you're not going to begin that all over again, are you?" exclaimed the speaker addressed as skipper. "Have you got a better plan?"

"Can't say I have—thanks to your damned bungling—"

"Shut up! We're both in this, and we've got to stand by each other. The one thing that won't help us is another quarrel. Anyway, it's a chance, and we've got to take it. It will divert suspicion from us—for a bit, anyhow, till we can clear off. And the only alternative is to wait till things are discovered and to hold out our wrists for the hand-cuffs."

"It may come to that," observed Joe, grimly.

"But it may not," retorted the other. "To hell with your gloominess! D'you suppose I couldn't have been gloomy myself all this time, and given it up—"

"I wish to God you had!"

"Bah! Wishing's no good. I didn't, so there's an end of it. The prize was too big. Damn it all, you went into this with your eyes open, didn't you? You were going to get your share. And—who knows—"

"His voice grew eager. "We may be lucky, even yet!"

The figure crouching under the wall raised his hatchot, and shook it.

"You know, you don't give me any credit," continued the skipper. "Nycroft is on board, and so is Mirronneau." The figure under the wall again quivered. "And in a couple of minutes, Fyne will be as quiet as they are—and we'll have him on board. When they're all three discovered in the morning, blown to bits—I suppose there'll be a few fragments left—it likely the police will look any farther for the responsible party—for awhile, at any rate."

There was a silence. Then Joe growled, savagely.

"It's a hell of a business. I've always kept out of this sort of thing before, and I didn't bargain for it."

"Nor did I bargain that Nycroft would come poking his nose into it," retorted the skipper. "That's what queered the pitch. He was getting too inquisitive. He'd have wanted his slice."

"And he could have had it, for me."

"Well, he couldn't, for me! It would have been too big a slice! You don't know Nycroft. He'd have grabbed the lot, and found some way of getting us hauled up for the other matter. He's a devil—or, rather, was."

The speaker chuckled suddenly and sardonically. "And now, Joe—I wouldn't wonder if Nycroft doesn't get saddled with all the blame. It's really rather pretty, when you think of it. No—it wasn't at all a bad idea, Nycroft falling over the cliff."

"Oh, well, that's done. It's these others I'm worrying about now."

"All right, Joe. We'll let 'em stay, eh. And when Fyne and Mirronneau return to their senses and tell their stories to the police, it'll be all bright and shining for you and me, eh?"

There was another short silence, and a shadow appeared on the blind, as though one of the speakers had made a movement. "You're a fool to start thinking at the eleventh hour, Joe. There are times when one mustn't think. Let's get upstairs now and see how things are going. This delay's been a confounded nuisance, and we don't delay any longer."

Then the voices ceased, the shadow disappeared from the blind, and the speakers evidently left the room.

Napoleon and Guy turned to each other.

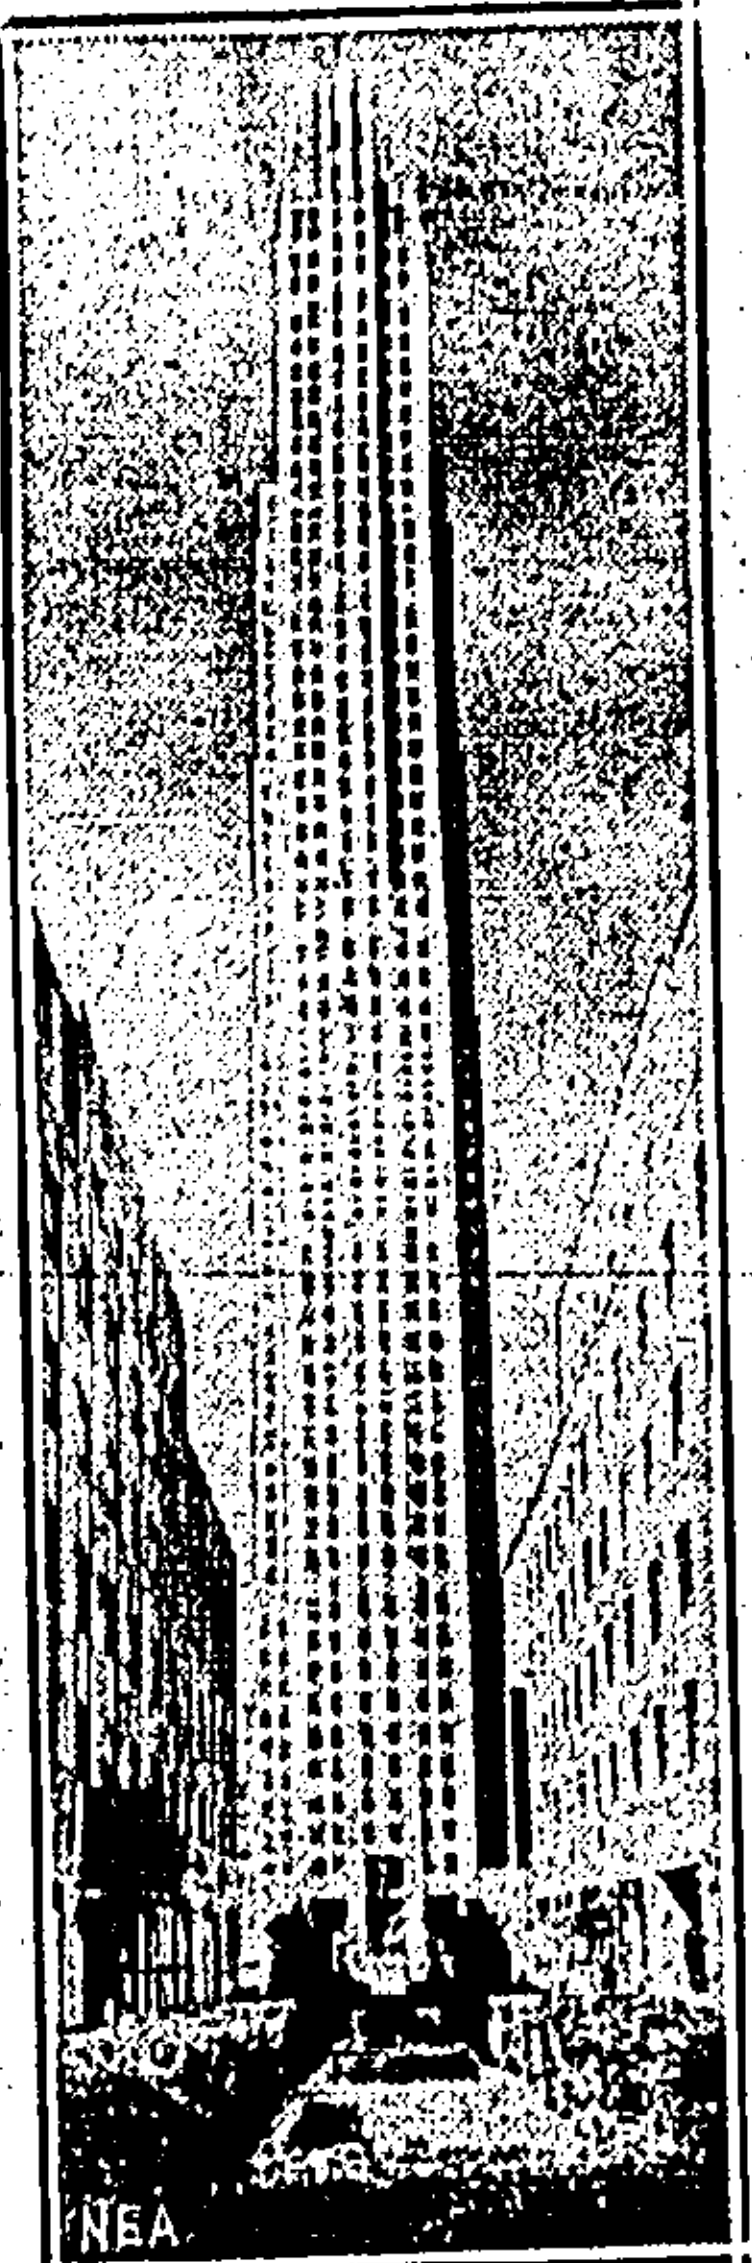

"Fyne—he's in there!" whispered Guy. "What devil!"

"God, what devils!" muttered Napoleon. "What shall we do? Rush the place?"

TOUCH THE POINT TO PAPER
FLOW OUT!

One of the most important features of the Parker Pen, to millions of owners, is the smooth, effortless way it makes words. Just a pressureless touch of the gold point to a piece of paper, and the ink flows out in smooth, unbroken strokes! You can really write much longer with a Parker because your fingers tire less quickly. You can write more, too, because one filling of the leak-proof, non-breakable barrel is enough for 6000 words!

And what a beautiful pen! Exquisitely colored, nicely proportioned, and finished in the perfection of a fine piece of jewelry, the Duofold looks and writes like the aristocrat it is.

But, whether you're buying a pen for yourself or as a gift, make sure you select a genuine Parker.

Parker QUINK—For pens that are all-ling, we've perfected Parker Quink—a quick-drying, permanent ink that makes any fountain pen write better. Also washable Quink that can be easily washed out from clothing.

MY CRITICISM OF YOUTH

unemployment and general uncertainty. They are who have a vision of something better, but seem afraid to justify their dissatisfaction by bringing a better state of things into existence.

I criticise this generation for their acquiescence, for their carelessness, for their lack of initiative; but I believe they can do great things if only there is the will.

It is not that they want leaders; they can do their work as individuals with equally effective result. They need the faith and the belief that something can be done, and that they are the people to do it.

We ask them to be more serious before it is too late. Let them have the will to build now on the ruins of a sad and unhappy system, and play their games within the walls of a new Jerusalem rather than on the outskirts of a dying and decaying town that contains the hopelessness of the past. Let them keep their eyes on the vision of something their own souls are yearning for, and not be content with things as they are, even if it is unsatisfactory to criticise and bemoan yet not to act.

The whole world will shortly be in their hands to mould or finally to destroy, and no one minds the destruction if only he can be certain that from the ashes will arise a land of greater beauty and greater happiness.

REIGN OF TERROR SERIOUS CONDITION OF SIAM AFFAIRS

Singapore, Nov. 13. A condition approaching "a reign of terror" now exists in Siam as a sequel to the recent rebellion led by one of the Siamese Princes.

According to messages received here from Bangkok, wholesale arrests have been made by the Secret Service Police and it is alleged that the prisoners are being kept in anything but satisfactory conditions.

A number of prisoners have been tried before closed military courts and these tribunals are still busy with a long list of cases. It is estimated that the revolt thus far has cost Siam nearly $1,000,000.—Reuter.

BRITAIN WATCHING.

CUBAN SITUATION NOT A RESPONSIBILITY

London, Nov. 13. Replying to a question by Mr. Gratton Doyle, Capt. Anthony Eden said the Government was closely watching events in Cuba but did not feel that Mr. Doyle's suggestion that Britain consult the United States with a view to averting further loss of life would serve any useful purpose at present.

The British Minister had reported that there had been no British casualties and that appropriate steps would be taken to afford protection to British lives.—Reuter.

CHATER ROAD MISHAP.

MOTOR LORRY AND CYCLE IN COLLISION

A motor lorry and motor cycle were involved in a collision in Chater Road, near the junction of Ice House Street, during the time interval yesterday. Both vehicles suffered some damage, but no person was hurt.

Ma Ka-kia, driver of the lorry, reported to the Police at Central that he was travelling east along Chater Road when he collided with a motor cycle. The cycle was going ahead at the time of the mishap, and was driven by Mr. Cheung Kin-cho, residing at Lyndhurst Terrace.

Damage to the front and rear mudguards, exhaust pipe, gasoline tank, handle bar and foot-rest was suffered by the motor cycle, while the glass of the front left lamp of the heavier vehicle was smashed.

GOVERNMENTS AND THE PRESS

One of the most striking and gratifying changes which has come over Officialdom in England during recent years has been the increased facility given to the Press in the matter of securing information on matters of public concern. Time was, not so many years ago, when, for all intents and purposes, Government doors were closed in the face of journalistic enquirers. Or, at best, if information was eventually vouchsafed, a general Press communiqué would be issued, with the result that the fruits of one newspaper's enterprise were made a present to others also. This unsatisfactory method is still periodically encountered in Hongkong. It is obviously unfair, and is thoroughly at variance with the practice now followed in the Mother Country. To-day, pressmen who call on several Government departments in search of information encounter not the slightest difficulty either in establishing contact or in securing exclusive information. Attached to each Ministry is a Publicity Section, complete with staff, which exists for no other purpose than to furnish the Press with official statements. No attempt is made to be secretive, neither is there any question of permitting other newspapers to profit from the enterprise of their rivals. "First come, first served" is the principle on which these official Publicity Sections work. This, after all, is as it should be. Government departments at Home do not arrogate to themselves a position, over and above the public, to which they have no rightful claim. They realise that, if anything, the boot is on the other foot—that the public, through the medium of the Press, has a right to information on matters of general concern. Here in Hongkong, there are officials who act on this principle, whose helpful attitude we freely acknowledge, but there are others—who are so hide-bound with the traditions of the past that they invariably "play for safety" by taking refuge in silence when approached for official information. Happily, we have as head of the Administration at the moment a Governor who, unlike some of his predecessors, thoroughly believes in taking the Press into his confidence. There are lesser lights in the Government, however, whose attitude is distinctly otherwise. Is it too much to hope that during Sir William Peel's incumbency, a general instruction may go forth to all departments to follow the Home practice, thus opening up to the public some of the avenues which are now wrongfully closed to enquirers on its behalf?

NOTES OF THE DAY

RUSSIA AND AMERICA

Negotiations between the United States and Soviet Russia seeking the establishment of diplomatic relations are being hampered by issues which M. Litvinoff anticipated would be ignored by mutual consent. At the eleventh hour, President Roosevelt has dragged out most of the skeletons into the cold light of day and consequently, recognition seems likely to be delayed. The move is surprising, suggesting as it does that for some reason a change of attitude has come over Washington. America's friendly gesture, seized upon approvingly in Russia, may resolve itself into a cool discussion upon points of difference between the two countries. M. Litvinoff has had to consult with Moscow before proceeding further.

AMERICA AND JAPAN

The conclusion first likely to be drawn is that Japan's strong antagonism to a closer rapprochement between the United States and Russia has contributed something to events and it is easy to quote the decision to move the U.S. Fleet into the Pacific as significant of the President's anxiety to appease Japanese opinion. The two things coming together look curiously like circumstantial confirmation of the suspicion that America's Far Eastern policy has undergone a change, though a swift denial would probably follow a direct question to the State Department. Nevertheless, M. Litvinoff is likely to feel, if he becomes involved in technical discussion on debt claims and counter-claims, that he has been invited to Washington under somewhat false pretences.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA

Meanwhile, the seriousness of developments in the Far East cannot be overlooked. Russia and Japan cannot maintain relations on their present delicate basis without a break somewhere at some time and with provocateurs active, stirring up hostility, it may come at any time. The story of the sinking of two Japanese warships near Kamchatka must have been of Japanese origin, although the purpose may defy analysis. Experience of recent months has suggested that if Japan seeks a caveau belli she will find one easily enough, without worrying about absurd concoctions.

AMERICA'S PROBLEM

Will the next chapter of American recovery be printed on greenbacks? The question still remains unanswered although President Roosevelt is being pressed for a decision. The pressure comes from currency inflationists and sound money advocates alike. But between the President's immediate plans and runaway currency fixed, there is a great gulf fixed. Credit expansion is still logical step in the recovery programme, although the thinly veiled opposition of the banks to the whole plan is creating unexpected obstacles. As Mr. J. M. Keynes has pointed out, the need now is for expenditure on capital goods—that is, on those things which go into the building and equipping of manufacturing plants, and whose production employs a vast army of labour of all types. Expenditure of this kind must be financed through credit. A prospect of currency inflation could only hinder credit expansion because no-one wishes to tie up money in loans when it appears that he will be repaid in currency of less value.

COMMODITY DOLLAR

The need for adjusting the dollar's value to changed conditions is recognised by the Administration. Justice to debtors, who are trying to meet obligations in dollars which represent much more goods and effort than those they borrowed, calls for adjustment. But the President fortunately still jibs at achieving this through currency inflation which might easily become a source of continuing injustice to creditors. His principal advisers at the moment are Prof. James Harvey Rogers and Prof. George F. Warren both of whom are "commodity dollar" men. Recent policy has been directed towards the creation of the commodity dollar—whose value would be adjustable to accord with changing commodity prices and the President is pledged to give it every chance to prove itself. Europe's experience with currency inflation offers a grave warning against the issuance of printing-press money. Nevertheless certain sections of American public and political opinion are advocating virtual fiat currency. Farmers, anxious to see another substantial price rise in their products before crops leave the farms, have a formidable representation in Congress. And it may safely be predicted that unless the Administration succeeds in bringing about substantial increase in farm prices, the country will be faced with the prospect of currency inflation in its most dangerous form.

MY CRITICISM OF YOUTH

By OLIVER BALDWIN

THE war-born children of every nation become a problem to their nation the moment they cross the threshold of manhood and take on their first responsibilities. They start with a handicap which is not often realised and which finds its origin in those dark days of war when, under-nourished and over-sensitive, they pass a childhood of mass-inflicted inferiority. When they are young they are forced to live in a world of their own. They are of little consequence; the father or older brother is the hero of the home; their own opinions are valueless, and they gradually develop an inferiority complex, often coupled with a form of jealousy bound to produce trouble for them in the future.

These children have grown to manhood in a mad world in which nothing seems secure and no one appears to know the reason why things do not go on as they did before the war.

Idols have been smashed before their eyes; slogans are shouted aloud to be denied within the year; answers to their questions are hopeless and inadequate. All around them they see wealth and poverty, yet their ears are always filled with talk of the struggle for economic existence and the necessity for economy and self-denial.

Soon they are launched into the world to add to the number of strugglers and fighters, and so intense is the battle that immorality in their methods of business appears an easy way for their weary feet.

This strain produces a quality that was not very apparent in pre-war generations. That of unreliability. It seems that the post-war youth has little pride in the fact that when he says he will do something he is in duty bound to keep his promise. He is perfectly content to say he forgot, or that he had not time, or that he did something else instead.

He has little desire to perfect himself in his profession, and little enough interest in it as such. He hesitates to acquire knowledge, and seems devoid of an inquiring mind.

Maybe he mistrusts knowledge; maybe he has become hopeless in seeing the strange use to which knowledge is put. He is old in soul before his time, but younger in mind than many a generation before him.

He is content with things as they are. He does not go forth to seek, but is content to drift with the tide. His energies are diverted from doing to watching; he justifies his existence by the sophorisms of horse-race gambling or games. They are the whole of his life-interest, the work and the recreation combined.

For a long time I believed that other writers misjudged the modern youth; I do not think so now, but I do realise it is not their fault. There were not the hands that formed and fashioned the state of society in which we live.

It was not they who murdered their fathers and brothers in four years of war. They are not responsible for the world's state of nerves. They know the state of things, but they have no desire to take part in bettering them.

They avoid responsibility whenever possible to such an extent that those who are seeking for an opportunity of trust are often denied it because they are of this generation.

Nothing outside their own little world seems to interest them, and their answer to any political or social injustice is either, "I don't know anything about that," or "why should I worry?" In the face of this, one feels singularly impatient.

I find it very difficult to rely on their word, since, to them, it is of no consequence that they tell you something false. It is probably due to lack of thought in the original statement; a carelessness that they are used to, and that their own generation accepts without question and with understanding.

That there is a sullen dissatisfaction with their home life is obvious, but it is rare that a definite break with family tradition is made, since the decision calls for more determination and sacrifice than they are capable of showing.

I feel that this new generation is seeking for something they cannot define; that they are conscious of the futility of so much they have been taught and yet are incapable of deciding for themselves what it is.

They pay little attention to the opinions of their elders, and yet can never give a constructive alternative. They mock at much their elders hold sacred, yet worship things of even less value.

A love of speed, of exhilaration, may merely be sensuous, but it is amazingly common among this generation. A disregard for life is also common, and the number of suicides is greater among these youths than has been known for many years.

They show an inability to stand criticism which is strikingly feminine in its essence and is the result of that sensitiveness which their childhood produced in the realisation of their insignificance during the war years.

They have no respect for Age, and that is Age's fault; for the world Age has made calls for no respect and no admiration. In this I see salvation, but again, the lack of respect is negative. They produce nothing to take its place.

They have a saner and healthier attitude towards the opposite sex than their elders, and they are less shy and awkward in company. They are not behindhand in expressing their opinions, yet those opinions are generally critical and unconstructive.

By their acceptance of things as they are, they deny the creative instinct. They accept and criticise, but refuse to build.

It is because so much in our existence is old and out-worn that we become tired and lazy about it. We accept, and find it unsatisfying.

What we need is something to create—some new world in which we can take a hand in the moulding of it; in which we can feel we are creating, and, having created, have something new and fresh and bright to hold on to.

That new thing, that new world, can be made by this post-war generation. It can only be made by them. They it is who have seen its rottenness from their earliest years, have experienced, and are experiencing, the reactions to its gross materialism in the shape of

The Very Idea!

BRIGHTENING US UP

By Eddie Kelly, Storm-trooper.

ALL this correspondence in a morning contemporary about Indians getting their shirts out suggests that we should have a brighter Fashions-For-Men movement in Hongkong. Edward Kelly, with his usual insolence, has decided to support the movement, and begins to-day's blintz with the Volunteers and local Regiments in mind.

IN conjunction with Mr. Fifth Bernard, we have decided to brighten up things considerably in the local Army and Volunteer forces. Henceforth our motto is going to be "New Pants For Hongkong's Parade Grounds".

Take the Volunteers. The big trouble with these people is that with the present uniform they look too much like soldiers. The whole art of soldiering is to deceive the enemy, and our idea of army uniforms is to create a general idea of a lot of young men out for a nice long stroll.

Also, our army fashions are going to change with the seasons. In future, Hongkong soldiers will wear their shirts out during the winter and get their shirts out during the summer. Nothing like being a bit original.

Take hats, for instance. They're far too orthodox. Of course, the members of the Scottish Company are allowed to wear berets, but that's only a tidily-winking concession. Probably there wasn't enough left to go round for the brims.

As the Anzacs are allowed to wear the feathers out of an emu's tail in their hats, we have decided to provide quail, pheasant, sparrow and parrot feathers for the other units. The Mounted Machine Gun Troop will, of course, be provided with horse feathers.

Then again, we will have to make war more comfortable, especially if we're going to spend so much money on natty uniforms. Fighting in Hongkong during the summer would be strictly taboo. Of course, we could go away to cooler places during a local summer war. Canada, for instance, where the beer is much cheaper.

In the winter we could slip back to Hongkong. Fighting along these lines would be good, not only for the soldiers, but for the shipping companies. Special tourist rates could be provided for civilians, who would be allowed to mix with the troops en route.

The civilians could be counted upon to improve the war, as they would provide the necessary touch of enthusiasm and encouragement so often lacking in past wars. Admission charges could be fixed so as to make the war practically self-supporting. As a matter of fact, with American film rights thrown in, there's no reason why we couldn't make a little over for the Canteen funds.

There'd be no rough stuff in our wars. Anyway, it's about time men got rid of the childish idea that they go to war to hurt each other.

You rush up to a man in Des Voeux road, and stick even a pin into him—let alone a big, long bayonet—and see what happens to you. In ten minutes you'd be arrested and charged with wounding with intent. If that's not war, what is?

The word "bottle" would be absolutely taboo in our war. As an alternative we would suggest that the word "bottle" be substituted. It would gain an enormous number of recruits for the Volunteers if they knew they were going to fight on the bottle-front.

GENERAL KNOWLEDGE TEST

Someone said the other day that average Hongkong person had the mentality of a child of six. The Editor says very nastily that it's because they read this column, but we take no notice of him. Anyway, just to test out our Great and Admiring Public we have set a series of questions. The person giving the most accurate reply will be given, as first prize, a night out (if it's a woman) or a thick ear (if it's a man).

Q. 1.—Who said he would rather have written what than take what place?

Q. 2.—Who stumbled on landing where, and making a quick recovery, said what?

Q. 3.—Who said that when she died what would be given on what?

Q. 4.—Who never did what again on hearing of the wreck of the what?

Q. 5.—Who said "Take away that what," and on what occasion?

Q. 6.—Who put down his what for whom, when she was about to step in a what?

"When he calls on you again, can't you just mention that your father might consider a position with his firm?"

GIGANTIC ARMAMENTS RACE IN THE PACIFIC

MOTION DEFEATED.

The vote of censure was defeated by 409 votes to 54, the members of the Samuel group of Liberals abstaining from voting. The official spokesman did not reply to Labour's interpretation of events in the Far East.—Reuter.

U. S. NAVAL PLANS.

A Havas message from Washington states that the U.S. Government is to submit to the Congress, at its next session, construction plan now being prepared by the Navy Department. This will provide for the renovation of the fleet and for bringing it by 1939 up to the level authorised by the London Naval Treaty.

The Navy Department fears, in fact, that under existing political circumstances, created by the attitude of Japan, it will not be possible to hold the session of the Naval Conference in 1935 and, therefore demands credits from $50 to 100 million dollars for the construction of new ships, mainly cruisers and aircraft-carriers, as well as 25 million dollars a year for the replacement of warships which have reached the age limit.

1934 PROGRAMME.

To these credits will be added $238,000,000 already obtained from the public works fund, as well as others which the Navy Department is seeking to obtain for the modernisation of antiquated ships. The building programme for 1934 will comprise the construction of one aircraft-carrier and a number of cruisers armed with six-inch guns up to the limit of five units. The programme provides also for an increase of effectives by 20,000 men.

JAPANESE ATTITUDE.

Meanwhile the Japanese Navy Office is closely watching the attitude of the Ministry of Finance towards the second naval replenishment programme, which is now being considered. The Navy Office considers it absolutely necessary to execute the replenishment with a view to supplementing the defects of the London Naval Treaty, as well as to guard against any serious international crisis that may confront the nation in future.

If the Finance Ministry should refuse to give its full-fledged support to the programme, the Navy authorities will strive energetically for the realisation of the scheme, it is generally believed.

While some are inclined to think that the return of the U.S. fleet to the Atlantic next year will relieve the ominous atmosphere prevalent on the Pacific, it is the opinion of the Japanese naval authorities that the temporary movement of a fleet cannot be taken as indicating change in the country's policy towards another, and the decision of the U.S. Government will not influence the projected programme.

London, Nov. 13.

The Labour vote of censure in the Commons was moved in order to ventilate the proposals adopted at the Labour Party Conference recently held at Hastings.

The motion was submitted by Mr. Morgan Jones, who after contending that the strong desire of the British people for an international agreement on disarmament had not been reflected in the Government policy at Geneva, said he cordially admitted that the draft convention put forward at the conference by this country was the first definite scheme to be produced and that although it was not perhaps so advanced as he could have desired, it was one worthy of full discussion.

PREMIER'S SPEECH.

The Prime Minister, who remarked that half the contents of the vote of censure had been borrowed from the draft convention, said that that convention had not been abandoned and remained the basis of the Geneva deliberations. If disarmament was to be attained there must, he said, be an international agreement, including Germany. In end there had to be such an agreement.

The British Government were in close touch with France, Italy and United States and in touch at Geneva with other nations especially the small European nations who had a great stake in this question.

NOT ANTI-GERMAN.

"We ask Germany to come in not at the end but now," said Mr. MacDonald. "We want Germany to be its own representative and its own spokesman. The exchanges of views and the conversations to which I have referred are not anti-German but pro-European. They are not to punish, but to establish peace." The problems we are trying to solve, the way we are trying to find in this entanglement of propaganda and expectation, of despair and hope, is the way to enable us to enable the Governments of Europe and the League of Nations to establish peace in Europe.

LEAGUE STATUS.

"Whatever form these conversations may take, it cannot involve any weakening of our loyalty to the League of Nations nor any diminution of its status or authority."

"If there is anyone who says that in order to deal with the present difficulties we should be asked to join in the destruction of the only existing machine for international co-operation, a machine for which no alternative has ever been proposed, our reply is 'No.'"

"As to the disarmament conference, we cannot admit that because Germany has withdrawn from it, that the work of disarmament ought not to go on."

NO FINALITY.

"Germany's withdrawal has unquestionably greatly complicated the work of the conference and necessarily involves consideration of ways, means and methods, and it would be quite unreasonable to ask the Government now and today its final view of all these questions."

No Government, added the Prime Minister, could compel any other Government to accept risks it believed were too great, and Britain could not extend her international commitments at a price which might be asked for in the interests of an agreement.—British Wireless.

ARMAMENT INTERESTS.

London, Nov. 13.

Sir Herbert Samuel dwelt on the power of armament interests. He urged the nations to make an offer which Germany could really be expected to accept. Germany's departure from the League could and should be reversed. The Government's policy should be directed to securing the return of Japan to the League, the entry of Russia and eventually of the United States.

HEATED SCENE.

In moving the vote of censure, Mr. Morgan Jones aroused a heated scene by alleging that Japanese policy in the Far East was encouraged not deliberately but inferentially by the British Government and Conservative leaders. He made specific mention of Mr. Amery and Sir Austen Chamberlain. Sir Austen indignantly repudiated the suggestion, while Mr. Ramsay MacDonald strongly protested against the statement that the Government had encouraged Japan, which, he stated, was not true.—Reuter.

JAPANESE AIRMAN ARRESTED

ALLEGED PLOT ON TOKYO

Tokyo, Nov. 9.

Commander Saburo Yamaguchi, retired crack bombing pilot, was arrested to-day and charged with participation in a plot envisaging the destruction of the Cabinet and the firing of Tokyo.—United Press.

Much interest was taken in the wedding, a few days ago, at the Holy Trinity Cathedral, Shanghai, of Mr. Ronald C. Stewart, of Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, and Miss Edith Anne Jamieson, who recently arrived from Edinburgh. The above photograph was taken after the ceremony.

H.M.S. Cumberland returned to Hongkong this morning shortly before 9 o'clock from her Japanese cruise and tied up at No. 3 Buoy. H.M.S. Eagle left this morning for exercises and will return to-morrow afternoon. H.M.S. Bruce accompanied by seven ships of the 4th Submarine Flotilla also left for exercises this morning and will return to-morrow evening.

The possibility that the victim had jumped off the team whilst it was still in motion before arriving at the Arsenal Street stop is ascribed as the cause of an accident which occurred at 10.30 yesterday morning, when Lui Lim, living at 8 Mallory St. was conveyed to hospital with a fractured skull. The man's condition is grave.

Residents who returned by the Blue Funnel liner Hector from Home included Dr. and Mrs. F. Bunde, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bailey and family, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. James, Miss E. O'Hagan, Mr. E. R. Price, Mr. and Mrs. A. Stevenson and Miss Stevenson, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Young.

SWEEPSTAKE VETO PROTEST

SIR W. DAVISON'S VIEWS

WAYS OF GETTING THE MONEY

The announcement that the Government has under consideration the confiscation of sweepstake prizes entering this country is likely to lead to a storm of protest by purchasers of tickets and others who uphold sweepstakes in principle.

Sir W. Davison, M.P., said to a reporter: "It is impossible as well as foolish to try to make criminals of people who win sweepstake prizes. It would be interesting to know whether the authorities propose to confiscate the winnings of British citizens at Monte Carlo and elsewhere."

"Whatever the Government's decision may be, it is, of course, impossible for it to prevent anyone instructing an agent to buy lottery tickets in Dublin, Paris, or Rome, and, if successful, to arrange for the money to be paid into banks at those places for remittance to Great Britain as directed."

"Does the Government propose to appropriate winnings on the racecourse? It is difficult to appreciate the distinction between winning a prize in a lottery or sweepstake and winning a prize through the tote, which is a Government institution."

"It will be remembered that the fashionable crowd at Ascot during four days subscribed $300,000 to the tote alone. Is this to be allowed to continue when the winner of a prize in a lottery is made a criminal?"

The following have been selected to represent the Y.M.C.A. 1st XI against the Radio Sports Club at King's Park this afternoon B.O. 5.15 p.m.—S. Shields; E. F. Selk; T. J. Price; H. J. D. Lowe, D. McLellan, J. Wilson; S. Fowler, F. E. Lammert, G. P. Lammert, G. Fowler and R. Baldwin.

NAVY VISIT TO JAPAN.

A very enjoyable hockey match was played between the Kobe R. & A.C. Ladies' team and a team from the Cumberland. The game was close throughout and although the Ladies lost—the score being 2-1—it was only by a narrow margin on standard of play. Perhaps a draw would have been a truer result, says the Japan Chronicle.

Lt. S. Pares and A.E. Simpson scored for the Cumberland and Miss Phyllis Smith for the K.R. & A.C. Mr. T. H. Evans umpired with his usual efficiency. The Cumberland team were entertained toiffin after the match and presented the Ladies' team with a Silver Cup and bouquet of red and white carnations ribboned with the colours of the teams.

DEFEAT FACING SHANGHAI CRICKET INTERPORTERS

PUT ON THE SPOT BY HONGKONG

HAYWARD & PEREIRA SUCCESSES

Minu's Clever Bowling Upsets Visitors

H.K. CONSOLIDATE

(By R. ABBIT.)

WHEN play ceased for the day on Saturday Hongkong were in a good position though there was nothing epoch-making about it.

Nor did the start yesterday warrant any undue excitement. Each batsman got a four and then the innings closed for two hundred and forty runs. A pretty useful score though not a mammoth one.

Its chief value lay in the fact that it consolidated the success in winning the toss. Few, I imagine, were sufficiently optimistic to expect the developments which actually happened. The start was certainly not sensational. But, when the visitors went in to bat things started to happen, and continued to happen for some time.

AN APPALING START.

The start was sensational. Beck sent down a good one on the leg stump and one of the two best Shanghai batsmen was out first ball.

The practical advantage was great. The moral advantage was enormous.

Owen Hughes had come to the conclusion, and I think rightly, that Garthwaite with a completely new ball was a different bowler to Garthwaite with one which had lost its shine.

He only bowled six overs but he got his wicket. Simpson had hit him nicely to leg for four, and probably the best ball of the match. A very fast one, it pitched on the off stump and just took the leg ball. 48-5-1.

THE LAST STAND.

After the resumption the last real stand was made. Jenkins hung on against Pereira and Minu while Leach seemed supremely at ease save for one dangerous flick over slip's head.

But Minu was bowling better than he has done before, and the moment Jenkins tried to hit him, a hard drive to cover was neatly taken by T. A. Pearce. Thereafter Leach alone did anything.

Hayward at first slip was excellent and took first a quick chance off Minu to send Malay back and then by a brilliant bit of anticipation held a tremendously fast snick by Leach off Pereira almost behind the wicket-keeper.

Leach played magnificently, bagging the bowling as much as possible, but Minu bowled T. Madar and then Dunkley whipped off the balls

A recent picture of A. R. Minu, the I.R.C. spin bowler, who yesterday met with success against Shanghai.

I venture to think in that case we were lucky as I—with all deference—doubt very much the wisdom of a course which might have left us with well over a hundred to get on a fourth innings.

As it was, we have made quite a satisfactory score but during the last two hours the wicket showed distinct signs of wear, and a nasty spot seems to have developed at the Law-Courts end, just where it will help Beck and Pereira.

I might mention here that the match will be played to a finish.

HONGKONG'S SECOND KNOCK.

Our usual pair opened and Hayward's damaged finger which had been carefully strapped seemed to steady him.

Although Fincher was soon out, caught at short leg in hooking a short 'un which cocked up, we never seemed in danger of a collapse, as Hayward kept an end going steadily, playing good and watchful cricket.

True, it was slow. But, as the match is to be played out, it was good policy.

JENKINS BOWLS WELL.

Leach's first change at the Yard end was to put on Jenkins who bowled off-spinners on the middle stump with four short legs. He managed to keep the batsmen guessing a little, to judge from the angles at which the ball left the bat on occasions, but it was some time before Pearce was caught at the wicket off one to which he turned right round.

Williams came in and seemed at home at once. He hit three good fours and then jumped in to drive and was clean bowled (69-3-14).

THE SCORE DOUBLED.

But there the Shanghai successes finished for the time. Their bowlers kept an excellent length and prevented much scoring but they could not get a wicket.

Garthwaite was playing a nice game and would have scored more than double his runs but for the fact that all his best shots went straight to hand.

Leach had a very long spell at the Naval Yard end, during which Hayward completed his fifty with a pretty off drive. The score had been doubled.

TWO QUICK WICKETS.

Minu was sent in to force the pace off presumably tired bowling but, after a very nice four and a couple of big singles, he tried to hit Leach and sent a skied ball back to the bowler. (148-6-0.)

Owen Hughes came in for the last five minutes but after scoring a single he was bowled by a particularly good off-break from Torry which spun off very fast and broke from the off to the leg peg.

THE PRESENT POSITION.

Hongkong are thus in the enviable position of being two hundred and eighty-six runs on with four wickets to go, and with a pitch that is showing distinct signs of wear.

Hayward is still not out and there is quite a reasonable chance of another fifty runs, although I sincerely hope Shanghai will have half an hour's batting before time. Normally one would have expected to see runs scored much faster in the last hour, but the fact is that the bowling never got loose or lost a length.

Under the circumstances there was no point in forcing the pace. To-day's cricket should be most interesting though, barring the uncertainty of cricket, Hongkong should win.

BANK DEFEATED IN KEEN RUGBY MATCH OPPORTUNITIES LOST

(By "Line-Out").

The South Wales Borderers beat the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank in a rugby match at Soekunpo, yesterday by two tries (six points) to nil.

The Bank were a little unlucky to lose, as they pressed for three parts of the game; but they lacked finish and several passing movements were spoilt by faulty handling.

The Bank forwards, amongst whom King was very prominent, heeled well and gave their backs plenty of chances.

Martin, the Borderers fast winger, scored in the initial half, when he made a dash for the line and flung himself over when half tackled by Rigg.

The final try for the Borderers was scored in semi-darkness when a forward touched down following a very fine run by Martin.

DRAWN MATCH AT VALLEY NAVY TEAMS IN OPPOSITION

Some keenly contested exchanges yesterday resulted from the friendly rugby match between the Officers and Ship's Company of H.M.S. Medway and H.M.S. Berwick at Happy Valley, the final score of a goal and a try (8 pts.) each being a fair indication of the run of play.

The Medway were only able to field 14 men, one of their players being unable to turn out at the last minute.

The Berwick commanded the play during the opening stages of the first half, and opened the scoring through Williamson who, taking a running pass, went over for a try. Masters added the extra points. The Medway got away soon after, and Lieut. Miers, following a brilliant run, touched down for Lieut. Donald to convert. Before half time the Berwick again took the lead through Corp who scored an unconverted try.

FINE PASSING MOVEMENTS.

The play in the first half was featured by some brilliant passing movements in which Lieut. Miers, Lieut. Sinclair and Terry were conspicuous.

After the interval, the Medway stood their ground against the concerted attacks by the opposing forwards, and Terry, picking up in (Continued on Page 5.)

RIFLE SHOOTING SUCCESS

J. H. DENBY WINS N. R. A. MEDAL

DONEGALL BADGE CONTEST

J. H. Denby won the National Rifle Association silver medal and the Donegall Badge in a local shoot organised by the Hongkong Rifle Club.

However, he had previously won the Donegall Badge, and is in possession of its attendant benefits to which the winner is entitled at Bisley, so that A. Chappelle, who came second in the competition, was awarded the Donegall Badge, and Denby the silver medal.

The entries were disappointing in only nine competitors putting in an appearance on Saturday. As a result no elimination contest was necessary. Weather conditions were ideal on Saturday, but on Sunday a rather gusty wind at the 600 mark made shooting a little difficult.

SHANGHAI HARDCOURT CHAMPIONSHIPS

GUY CHENG BEATEN BY GORDON LUM'S PUPIL

MISS COLLACO REACHES FINAL OF LADIES SINGLES

Shanghai, Nov. 10.

Yesterday's play in the Shanghai open hard-court tennis championships provided only a few surprises for the spectators. The play was, on the whole, very good, perfect weather and conditions giving the contestants every opportunity to do their best. With the tournaments approaching the finals, the contestants were more evenly matched than heretofore and all had to show their best to remain in the running.

Play started at 1 p.m. with Mrs. Lum and Miss Mao completing their match against Mrs. Capelahn de Frisque and Miss Tavares, which was postponed the day before on account of darkness, with the score at 3-1 in the deciding set. With the lead against them, Mrs. Lum and Miss Mao surprised everyone by winning their match. The final score stood at 6-3, 2-6, 6-1.

In the best mixed doubles match to date, Mrs. Fischer and Melise defeated Mr. and Mrs. Lum by 6-1, 6-2.

The result was not unexpected, although Gordon Lum always is an opponent to fear. Perfect combination and heady play by the victors kept the game in hand, however, as Lum could not carry the whole game on his shoulders. Mrs. Lum is a fair player but was completely out-classed in yesterday's company. Mrs. Fischer and Melise have now reached the final round of this tournament. They are expected to give a very good account of themselves, many even looking on them as the possible winners in the final.

Mme. Meadmore and Khoo reached the semi-final round of the same tournament by disposing of Miss Ludge and Thorburn without undue difficulty. The score was 6-0, 6-1 in their favour. All indications point to this couple being the other finalists in this tournament.

GUY CHENG BEATEN.

A good singles match was seen in the men's semi-final round, when Yui defeated Guy Cheng by 6-3, 6-2.

stretch out to points that she should have won without difficulty. Miss Collaco is to meet Mrs. Fischer in the final. Judging by the standard of play during this last week, Mrs. Fischer should win. She should not, however, do so easily, as Miss Collaco has a way of giving an excellent account of herself when up against real opposition.

In the ladies' doubles, Mrs. Sinclair and Miss Rudge defeated Mrs. Rodger and Mrs. Heinzerling in an uninteresting match by 6-3, 6-2. These ladies have now reached the semi-final round.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

The only men's doubles match of the day was closely contested and very interesting. D. Cheng and Khoo only just managed to defeat Chun and Kwok by 6-4, 5-7, 6-2.

The play was mostly centre-court, and very pretty to watch. The young players, Chun and Kwok, have a big future ahead of them in local tennis if they keep on improving at their present rate. The feature of this match was the youngsters' fine rally in the second set. With one set against them, they fought through to win against great odds. The third and deciding set showed their weakening under the determined and clever attack of their experienced opponents and their best was not quite good enough.

Professional Rugby Club Chain Being Planned

GROUNDS AS TRACKS FOR RACING DOGS

A great swing-over from amateur to professional Rugby football is likely in Wales shortly.

It is proposed to have a chain of clubs with grounds which would be used also as greyhound tracks and eventually be floodlit.

A number of Welsh sportsmen have already interviewed prominent Rugby League authorities (the professional section of the game).

It is expected that link-up will be made with greyhound racing syndicates in Cardiff, Newport, Swansea, Merthyr, Pontypool, Pontypridd and Caerphilly, for the use of their grounds, which may, in time, be floodlit on lines similar to the White City, London.

WILLING TO TURN PROFESSIONAL

There are many players in amateur Rugby clubs who would be prepared to go over to professionalism.

They would possibly receive £3 for a win, £2 for a drawn game and £1 10s. if their side lost. They would also be in a position to accept work through their club, which is not allowed in the amateur game.

The fact that some of the greyhound racing tracks are now expected to influence the dog syndicates to support the proposal for a Welsh Rugby League.

Another proposal is the establishment of Rugby League clubs at such centres as Coventry, Leicester, Bristol, Plymouth and Gloucester, with some of the games played by floodlight.

swept the board in a tournament here to-day, winning all five matches—three singles and two doubles. F. J. Perry competed in both doubles.

The team are leaving for Sydney on Friday, where the first match against Australia will take place on November 30. In addition to Perry, the team consists of F. H. D. Wilde, G. P. Hughes, and H. G. N. Lee.—Routier.

SCHMELING TO MEET BAER

TENTATIVE FIGHT FOR FEBRUARY

San Francisco, Nov. 7.
Max Schmeling of Germany, one-time holder of the heavyweight title, and Max Baer, the youthful Livermore challenger, have been tentatively scheduled to meet in a return engagement here on February 22, it has been announced.

Max Schmeling, it was revealed, will fight King Levinsky, the former fish vendor, in Chicago before meeting Baer.

The Livermore lad won over Schmeling in the first meeting, in June this year, by a technical knockout.

Schmeling lost the title to Jack Sharkey in June last year. In September of the same year he tackled Mickey Walker, the Toy Bulldog, whom he disposed of in an eight-round technical kayo. Walker's fighting stock depreciated since then.

The monthly meeting of the Hongkong Football Association will be held on Monday Nov. 20 at 5.30 p.m. in the Association's office, No. 6 Des Voeux Road.

This illustrates how E. C. Fincher scored his 81 runs against Shanghai last Saturday.

incidentally was seeing them, well, when the next one swung in a bit and he was leg before.

Two runs later and Pereira's quickness and accurate throwing gave Beck a chance to run Pat Madar out, and he took it. Three down for twelve, and a very good three too!

Leach came in and started to play one of the best—if not largest—innings he has ever played upon this ground. Booth, a thoroughly sound bat, stood by his skipper and it looked as though the disastrous start might be retrieved, as thirty-four runs were added.

A GOOD CHANGE.

But here the wisdom of including two fast bowlers in the side was shown. Pereira went on and had Booth taken at third slip in his first over, while, in the second, he picked down pro-when Torry Wilson lifted his heel. Just before Leach, in hitting out, gave his only chance, a quick one to Hayward at all, which was not accepted, as the fieldman got it on the top of a finger and split a nail very painfully.

A GOOD PERFORMANCES. I think it is a fair criticism to say that the cheap dismissal of Shanghai was due to the really good bowling and fielding of the home side as the wicket seemed to be playing quite true so far.

It began to go to bits later, and Shanghai will have to bat on a very much more difficult pitch in their second innings. But I shall be agreeably surprised if we put them out as cheaply next time.

THAT FOLLOW ON.

Shanghai had just made enough to save the follow-on, which would, I am told, have been enforced.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Once Joe Anton had been a third-rate pug. Now he owns one of the most exclusive speakeasies in the West 50's, wears $20 silk monogrammed shirts and fresh gardenias every day, takes daily lessons in English, and aspires to the attention of a Park Avenue girl. And that's where trouble comes in! This Joe Anton, as played by George Raft in "Night After Night," the screen version of a story by Louis Bromfield, which opens on Thursday at the Queen's Theatre is a follow of infinite charm. To his natural magnetism he adds the unfailing appeal of the boy who has never grown up. That's why, as Leo, his pal, points out, his women always come back. It's a fine role for Raft, but it is no finer than his performance. Constance Cummings adds greatly to her constantly growing artistic stature in the role of The Lady. Wynne Gibson, one of the most genuinely talented young actresses on the Paramount lot, draws a vivid picture of Iris, the girl discarded for the Park Avenue Lady. Mae West, in her first screen role, practically walks off with the picture every time she swings her big, genial Maudie—Maudie out of Joe's past—before the camera. And as if three leading women were not enough there is also Allison Skipworth as Miss Jellyman, the middle-aged school teacher, who is teaching Joe how to be a gentleman. Under the able direction of Archie Mayo, these talented players have succeeded in making the film constantly amusing and entertaining. It is not without its dramatic and stirring—but in the long run, its comedy triumphs. The dinner which Joe gives for Miss Park Avenue touches a high point in dramatic comedy.

"The Eagle and The Hawk"

"The Eagle and The Hawk," story of two wartime flyers who become heroes under the stress of their hatred for each other, is now showing at the Queen's Theatre. Frederic March, Cary Grant, Curcio Lombard and Jack Oakie play the leading roles in the film, which is from a story by John Monk Saunders, author of "Wings." Stuart Walker directed the production. The story centres around a pilot in the Royal Flying Corps who handles his plans with exceptional brilliance and an observer equally as skilful with his gun. But though they are the best of combinations in the sky they are the bitterest of enemies on the ground. The brilliance that makes the pilot expert is based on his casual, reckless attitude. The skill that makes the observer expert is based on his cold delight in killing. Pilot hates observer for his ruthlessness; observer hates pilot for his constitutiveness. It is when the observer discovers that the pilot has begun to crack under the strain that the story takes a new twist. March is cast as the pilot and Grant as the observer. Oakie as another pilot, furnishes comedy interest.

NEW AIR ATTACHE.

HEALTH IMPROVES AS DEPARTURE NEARS

Wing Commander R. P. Willock, new British Air Attache to China, is convalescing following his recent illness and his temperature to-day was normal.

It is now definitely announced that he will leave for China on December 8.—Leader.

since they were seen in "Paddy, The Next Best Thing." It opens to-day at the King's Theatre. In this film, Gaynor and Baxter respond to the popular demand for micro pictures in which they are both featured. And the roles they portray are the type which give each of them their greatest opportunities thus far. Miss Gaynor is a young Irish clovee, who adds a strong dash of roughness to her famous wistfulness and thereby creates a new kind of character for herself. Baxter has the part of a big-hearted fellow who, much as he may try, cannot help falling head over heels for her. Walter Connolly, highly reputed player of the dramatic stage, has a featured role in support of Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter. Others in the cast include Harvey Stephens, Margaret Lindsay, Mary McCormic, Joseph M. Kerrigan, Fluke O'Hara, Chairo McDowell, Merle Tottenham, Roger Imhof and Trevor Bland.

Jeanne Stuart is one of the loveliest actresses on the British stage and screen. And, what is more, one of the luckiest. She is an enchanting girl for whom everything is coming true. Health is here and fragile beauty; she has won success behind the glamorous footlights and on the silver screen; and recently a young, handsome and wealthy suitor has laid his heart and his fortune at her feet. "I feel so excited," she told a Press representative before she started on her three months' honeymoon in South America. "I feel just as though I were stepping on dreams." Jeanne's "Fairy Prince" husband is Mr. Bernard Duddley Docker, a thirty-five year old "City" man who is director of the Midland Bank, and numerous other companies. But Mrs. Docker does not intend to retire from the stage and screen, which is welcome news to her countless admirers. She is one of the few actresses who are equally at home both in sympathetic and "vamp" roles. One of Jeanne's finest performances was in a selfish woman of the world in Van Druten's famous "After All," since when she has played on the screen in sympathetic parts opposite Tom Walls. Her last film part before her marriage was in "The Shadow," which is at the King's Theatre on Wednesday.

"HALLUCINATION"

France Fears for Safety of Versailles

Paris, Nov. 13.
"Collective hallucination" sums up the French opinion of the German elections. It was admirable that 2,000,000 persons dared to vote against the goose-step, says
Le Journal.

Complete abolition of the Versailles Treaty is feared by some papers, which ask is Mr. Mac-Donnell still determined to abandon the treaty?

There is considerable despondency in the press comment. It is generally believed that Herr Hitler's peace speech Friday was intended for British and Italian consumption and it is feared that Italy may turn to Berlin and forsake Geneva.—Reuter.

Geneva Surprise

Geneva, Nov. 13.
There is mild surprise here at the number of "No" votes cast at the German election in respect to the plebiscite.
Conciliatory action is now expected to enable Italy to continue her plans for meeting the Powers.
—Reuter.

Austria's Reaction

Vienna, Nov. 13.
It is feared in some quarters
that the Hitler triumph may encourage the Austrian Nazis to attempt a putsch.

The fifteenth anniversary of the Republic passed quietly in Vienna and the provinces, apart from a Socialist demonstration in Vienna, in which the police used their batons and Hugo Thaler, Socialist vice-president in the Lower Austrian Diet, was hurt. Forty
Socialists were arrested.—Reuter.

Victory for Fascism?

Rome, Nov. 13.

There were no papers this morning.

Italians generally hail the result of the victory for Hitler as an indication of sympathy for the Fascist idea in Europe.—Reuter.

New York Comment

New York, Nov. 13.
This is just one more tribute of the German people, paid under the ruthless regimentation of opinion, says the Herald-Tribune.
—Reuter.

BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Today's Contract Problem
The dealer, as South, dealt himself the following hand.
What is his correct opening bid?

♠ A 9 8
♥ A 5 4
♦ A K 3
♣ A 5 2

Solution in next issue. 21

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

Here is another example of the timing factor. Two partners each hold a six-card major suit, but one has 100 honours. There is a small slam in the hand, but the bidding must be timed so that the proper hand becomes the declarer.

The Bidding.

South West North East
1 spade Pass 2 heart 3 diamond
3 spade Pass 4 spade Pass
5 spade Pass 6 heart Pass

North should bid two hearts rather than support the spade suit, as it is not advisable to support partner's suit unless you hold four of his trump if your hand has a cetter bid. East, not being vulnerable, is justified in over-calling with three diamonds.
South's three spades over East's three diamonds is a constructive bid—practically the same as a bid of four spades.

With the information that partner holds at least a five-card suit, and does not have support for the heart suit, North now can support the spade suit to four. When South bids five spades, he practically shows 100 honours and he is saying that, if North has immediate control of the heart suit, there probably is a slam in the hand.

Due to the fact that East has bid diamonds, North has a right to figure his partner for the ace of clubs. He knows that the spade suit is solid, but the danger of the hand is the king of diamonds. If South plays the hand at spades, the diamond suit will be opened through North's king, and East and West may cash two diamond tricks.

However, if East is forced to open, he will have to open another suit or up to North's king of diamonds, in which case only one diamond trick will be lost. Therefore, North must decide that, even though South may hold honours, the safety of the hand is playing it in hearts.

In other words, the timing factor of the opening lead is in favour of hearts as trump. Therefore, North's bid of six hearts is correct and South should pass.

If East opens the ace of diamonds, the contract will be held to a small slam. However, with any other opening, North and South will make a grand slam, while at spades only five odd could be made.

WIVES' RIGHT TO WORK

WOMEN'S CONFERENCE AND BAN

CONTRARY TO PUBLIC INTEREST

The right of married women to work was staunchly championed at the Conference of the National Council of Women at Torquay by Mrs. Eva Hartree, of Cambridge.

"In Germany," she said, "150,000 young women have been bribed to leave industry to get married. We claim, however, that it is a fundamental right of every individual, regardless of sex, to sell his or her labour for gain."

"It is a private matter between a woman and her husband how they arrange their lives. It is no business of the employer. The only business of the employer is whether the work is well done and what payment should be given for it."

"It has been said that there should not be two incomes going into one house. But every man who is earning an income of more than subsistence level is taking two incomes into the house."

"As to the objections raised by single women, every single woman is potentially a married one, and her point of view alters entirely when she realises that she cannot marry unless she gives up her work."

Mrs. Hartree added that perhaps one of the gravest aspects of this question was that the refusal to allow married women to work was putting an obstacle in the way of marriage.

"To make a woman give up her work on marriage leads to many secret marriages and even to a great number of immoral marriages—of people living together," she said.

WAGE EARNERS.

Mrs. Oliver Strachey, London, said that out of every 22 women one met in the street, ten were wage-earners. Men were no earning enough money nowadays to support wives and families, and unless women were allowed to work to help to support the families, they would not exist at all.

The delegates passed a resolution recording their opinion that regulations having the effect of dismissing women on marriage were unjust, uneconomic, and contrary to public interest.

Mrs. Keynes, the Mayor of Cambridge, raised the question of the training of nurses, and Mrs. Oliver Strachey, London, who was a member of the "Lancet" Commission, said that the Commission found that in many places probationer nurses were so miserably overworked that during their first year of training they broke down.

"I suggest," she said, "that we must do something to make things easier for the girl who has a vocation for nursing but cannot stand the racket of the first year."

Mrs. Mary Cant, a member of the Higher Education Committee of Essex, said that "we are allowing our children to know the dead languages and all that sort of thing, when they do not know how to control or know their own bodies."

ANNOUNCEMENT.

The marriage is announced between William Albert Shea and Rosa Lee, and will take place at St. John's Cathedral, on Saturday, November 25, 1933, at 3 p.m. No invitations are being issued, but all friends are invited to the ceremony, and afterwards, to the reception to be held at Gloucester Restaurant at 4 p.m.

MODERN GIRLS

LORD HORDER'S TRIBUTE: HYPOCRISY

Lord Horder, speaking in London paid a glowing tribute to the modern girl. He said:

"You hear a good deal to-day from the older generation about the terrible manners and customs of the young. Believe me, the girl of to-day is fundamentally very much the same as the girl of my young days."

"If your parents are shocked by your independence, you can be quite sure that the parents of those days were equally shocked by the independence of your mothers and aunts."

"The girl of to-day is a healthy, clean-limbed, open-air girl."

"It might have shocked a previous generation to see a girl wear a bathing-suit that she can carry in a handbag. But if the blushing modesty of the Nineteenth Century has gone, gone too is the slithering hypocrisy that was a characteristic of that age."

There was far more enjoyment and happiness for a far greater number of people than when he was young.

To a suggestion that as founder of the Anti-Noise League he might be out to suppress modern dance music, Lord Horder replied that modern rhythms would have sounded barbarous to Victorian ears, but the young people of to-day would have been outraged by the languid sentimentality of the old waltzes.

"The Blue Danube" of those days was a very slow-flowing river; you have made it a torrent."

FACTORY FIRE

SHAMSHUPO OUTBREAK

At half-past three this morning a fire broke out in an upper floor of 236, Fook Wa Street, Shamshupo, used as a knitting factory and dwelling.

A lighted candle falling into a quantity of knitting yarn when a board on which it stood became displaced, is believed to have caused the outbreak. The inmates made a desperate attempt to check the flames, but were eventually forced to give up. They got through a window in the kitchen and escaped on to the projecting roof of the lower floor.

The building, of comparatively recent construction, is concrete built, for which reason the firemen on their arrival were able to confine the flames to the floor in which they first broke out.

Damage to cotton yarn and other property is reckoned at $2,500.

RAPID SCORING BY STOKES

HOPE LOOMS—AND THEN COLLAPSE

WITH BREAK-UP OF PARTNERSHIP

A SERIES OF DISASTERS SHORTLY AFTER THREE O'CLOCK SPILT THE END TO A GREAT FIGHTING INNINGS BY SHANGHAI IN AN EFFORT TO SCORE 350 RUNS TO WIN IN THE FOURTH INNINGS OF THE INTERPORT MATCH.

When the disastrous spell had terminated seven wickets had fallen for 152 runs and the end was inevitable.

Stokes, who batted magnificently for 59 scoring at a rapid pace all round the wicket, was among the victims. Leach, Booth and Jenkins followed him to the pavilion in fairly quick time.

The cricket was, however, the most interesting of the match, Hongkong in the morning and Shanghai in the afternoon scoring at an attractively fast pace.

HONGKONG SETS A HUGE TASK

Although it had been rumoured that Hongkong would declare with their second innings score at 149, Owen Hughes dispelled all doubts by sending in Hayward (65 not out) and E. F. Fincher, who was commencing his innings.

"Torrey" Wilson started from the Supreme Court end, and gave away eight runs in his first over. Hayward hit him over slips' head for a four and then glanced him for two and a single. Fincher also scored a single.

IMMACULATE LENGTH.

From the other end, Isaacs kept an immaculate length as usual, and had the batsman quiet. The 160 was hoisted shortly after play commenced with a single by Hayward, who had 70 to his credit.

Both batsmen were batting well and scoring freely. They were not afraid to hit, and Hayward nearly sent up a catch to Leach at mid-off off Isaacs but the ball dropped just short of the Shanghai skipper.

Seeing that both batsmen were trying to score as quickly as possible, Leach decided to try "Pat" Madar, who sent down an over of "donkey drops". Off his fifth delivery, Hayward skied the ball and in trying to hold the catch, Sinclair was struck in the face by the ball. The batsmen took two runs. Sinclair was forced to retire for treatment.

HAYWARD OUT.

In Madar's next over, Hayward was sent back. He drove the ball straight into Leach's hands at mid-off when the score was 170. Of these he had made 83—the highest score of the series to date—in 164 minutes. His was a skilful, if patient innings. 180-7-38.

Perella, next man in, did not stay long. He hit a single and was bowled by Isaacs. The score-board showed 183-8-1. With Beck and Fincher associated, 200 was raised, the innings having then been in progress for 177 minutes.

Beck made 10, and in attempting to hit Isaacs, skied the ball to Pat Madar at mid-off for an easy catch. 203-9-10. Sinclair returned and was given a cheer.

ALL THE LUCK.

Hongkong definitely had luck. Several skiers went wide of fielders, and one might by Fincher off Isaacs, went over slip's head, but fell short of third man.

Dunkley joined Fincher, and together saw the 210 up. Not long afterwards, Hongkong's innings closed, Dunkley deflecting the ball to Leach in the slips. The score was 212. E. F. Fincher was again not out, his score this time being 24.

Hongkong's innings lasted altogether 189 minutes. The rate of scoring was a distinct improvement this morning, 63 being put on in 48 minutes. Shanghai went in requiring 350 to win, a well-nigh impossible, heartbreaking task on a Hongkong wicket in the fourth innings.

EARLY ESCAPE.

Hongkong went out to field at 12.01 p.m., and Leach sent out Stokes and Simpson to open Shanghai's second innings. Beck opened the attack from the Naval Yard end. His third ball hit Stokes on the fingers, and his fourth was deflected to the leg boundary for a four.

Owen Hughes again entrusted the initial bowling from this end to Garthwaite, and off his second ball, an appeal for a catch behind the stumps was made against

MR. WALLACE'S FORECAST

OFFICIAL CONTROL NEXT YEAR

Chicago, Nov. 13. Complete control by the Government of America's farmland, with only the rich soil permitted to be used for the purposes of agriculture, was the amazing forecast made to-day by Mr. Wallace, the Secretary of the Agriculture Department, in an address here.

Mr. Wallace said that the amount of acreage under wheat would by official control, be considerably reduced, the remainder of the land being devoted to forestry, recreation grounds and residential areas.

He added that the spectacular things that the Administration had done up to the present in 1933 were only a faint foreshadowing of some of the things which were ultimately necessary.

He predicted that the 1934 acreage of harvested crops would perhaps be thirty-five million less than in recent years.—Reuter.

CATHEDRAL WEDDING THIS AFTERNOON

Mr. George Sims and Miss Beatrice Home

Of considerable local interest, was the wedding which took place this afternoon, at St. John's Cathedral, when Miss Beatrice Home, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Home, of Trebovir Road, London, became the bride of Mr. George Sims, third son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sims, of Chesterfield, Derbyshire, England.

The Rev. Noel Evans officiated at the ceremony, with Mr. F. Mason, A.R.C.O., L.T.C.L., at the organ.

The bride was given away by the Director of Education, Mr. N. L. Smith. She was attired in a creation by "Eunice" of cream coloured georgette with hand-made lace veil and carried a bouquet of cream roses. She was attended by Miss J. Beavis as bridesmaid, who wore a green flowered georgette dress with velvet hat to tone.

The duties of best-man were discharged by Mr. R. R. Cameron. After the ceremony, a reception was held at 8, Conduit Road.

The honeymoon is being spent at Chung Chiu Island, the bride's going-away dress being of dark brown crepe with hat and accessories to match.

The groom is very well-known in Hongkong. He is B.A. (Hons.), Dip. Ed. (Oxford) and is Assistant Master at King's College.

Attention is drawn to the fact that the Cathedral Restoration Fund does not marry.

Roosevelt Gold Corner Plan

SHARP RISE IN POUND

LONDON PAPER'S REVELATION

THE AMERICAN OBJECTIVE

London, Nov. 14. The sensational disclosure that President Roosevelt's gold policy aims at nothing short of control of the international gold market by the United States is made by The Times.

Faced by a serious monetary crisis his efforts to secure control are likely to be intensified.

The information comes from the Washington correspondent of The Times, who referring to the President's ambitions to secure control, says that so much has leaked out regarding Roosevelt's private conference with his financial advisers.

U.S. ARGUMENT.

He adds that it is argued in American financial quarters closest to the President that when the United States abandoned the gold standard, it was left in a position of impotence because it did not enter the gold market while Britain, through her Exchange Equalisation Fund was enabled both to restore her own position and to determine the value of gold.

AND THE OBJECTIVE.

Control of the international market is sought in order that the increase in commodity prices shall not be confined to the United States, but will be so general as to influence all other currencies. A noticeable weakening of gold currencies has already occurred, and presumably it is the result of the American gold policy.

POUND RISING.

The effect of every move so far has been to cause the pound to appreciate in terms of all Continental gold currencies.

The franc depreciated to 81.29/32 in relation to the pound, the Swiss franc to 16.55/2, the Reichsmark to 13.48/2, the dollar to $5.16, the belga to 22.98 and the Dutch florin to 7.94/2. The American dollar is also slightly up in relation to Continental currencies.—Reuter and British Wireless.

Shanghai, Nov. 14. Mr. H. W. Donald, Marshal Chang Hsueh-lang's British adviser, and former Hongkong Journalist, is playing an active role in Chinese official circles. He left here for Peking yesterday with the avowed object of interviewing General Wen Fu-lin, General Yu Hsueh-chung and other ex-Manchuria leaders on behalf of the young Marshal.

After finishing his mission in the North, he will proceed to Kiangsu to interview Marshal Chiang Kai-shek.—Central News Agency.

Shanghai, Nov. 14. A striking international tribute was paid this morning to Major-General Fleming, D.S.O., C.M.G., commander of the British Forces in Shanghai, when he embarked aboard the 'Neuralia' for Hongkong en route to London.

In addition to detachments of the British Army and Navy and the Shanghai Volunteer Corps, there lined up on the Bund American marines, French and Japanese troops and Italian marines, presenting a colourful spectacle. There was also a large crowd representing official and diplomatic life and the general public, including the Mayor of Shanghai, Mr. Wu Teh-chen. All joined in a hearty farewell to a most popular British officer, who played an important part in the Shanghai War.

The 'Neuralia' sailed with the battalion of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders aboard, bound for India.

NATIVE BANKS' FAILURE

FROZEN ASSETS THE CAUSE

LATEST DETAILS

A shock has been created in local financial circles by the closing of the doors of two native banks with high reputations, of which Mr. Pun Hiu-cho is the managing director.

It is understood that the banks were victims of frozen assets.

With assets said to exceed liabilities, and totalling over $3,000,000, tied up in mortgages and property, they were unable to withstand a heavy run which continued for several days.

The Cheong Loong, of 151 Queen's Road Central, and the Shun Loong, of 139, Queen's Road, in both of which Mr. Pun Hiu-cho was managing director, and five other similar institutions in Canton have closed their doors almost simultaneously.

The only bank in which Mr. Pun was financially interested, which did not share the fate of the others, is one in Canton, which has been saved by the strong financial support of some of the senior partners.

HOUSES SOLD.

Mr. Pun Hiu-cho is known to have been straining every effort to liquidate the banks' position to save the situation.

It is learned from well-informed circles that only two days ago, eleven houses near Tin Lok Lane in Vanchai were sold for the sum of $210,000 to Mr. Kan Tat-chol, another director of the Tung Wah Hospital. The money is said to have been paid out to the depositors.

The failures of the banks is attributed to heavy commitments in mortgages and shares, which have recently witnessed a downward trend. Rumours that the banks were in a precarious position were started in Hongkong, and a run developed. Immediately telegrams were sent to Canton and over $1,000,000 was remitted to the Colony, but even this failed to satisfy the demand of the depositors.

Meanwhile, similar rumours had spread to Canton and there were runs on the banks.

TUNG WAH FUNDS SAFE.

Because of Mr. Pun's long connexion, over thirty years, with the native banking business in Hongkong and Canton, the failure of the concerns has caused a profound impression in local banking circles.

As Chairman of the Tung Wah Board for the current year, Mr. Pun was instrumental in organising the collection of $200,000 in connexion with the reconstruction of the Hospital's main building, marked recently by the laying of the foundation stone by His Excellency the Governor.

Of this sum, Mr. Pun contributed $10,000.

We were informed this morning that this sum was deposited in other banks, which had no connexion with the banks who have closed their doors.

THREE SMALLER FAILURES.

Three small local money-shops, which are said to have indulged mainly in exchange speculation, have been forced into bankruptcy, following it is said serious losses in commitments on the "double eagles," which have touched the lowest record on the Chinese Exchange for several years.

These concerns had no connexion with the other two and are not even classified in the same category, possessing a much smaller capital than the native banks.

Show Patience Toward Children Who Commit Offences Unknowingly

By Olive Roberts Barton

Victor had a ball. It was a red rubber ball that took both his little hands to hold.

His daddy was a baseball fan. Of all Victor's toys he favoured the red ball the most. He taught him how to throw it. When it went out in the street he would shout, "Atta boy! You scored a run that time, old fella! Come here, Mom, and see how Vicky can throw."

When it hit somebody on the head he would roar and laugh. "That's it, kid. Sock 'em!"

Later he bought a smaller ball so Victor could hold it in one hand and throw.

Moreover, he would pick up anything handy, a teddy bear or what not and give it a toss. "Catch, Vicky!" The game of pitch and catch went on incessantly in that house.

Running Into Trouble.

One day Victor found a croquet ball on a neighbour's lawn. He picked it up and threw it at Charley and it hit him on the head.

Charley went in screaming. Out came Charley's mother and ordered the visitor off the premises.

When he got home his mother scolded. He ought to know better than to hurt another boy.

Two-year-and-a-half-old Victor wondered what it was all about.

Another day he found his daddy's old baseball. It rolled out in the street and down a sewer. His father was furious. He talked turkey to his offspring about not touching things that didn't belong to him and said he had a good notion to whip him.

Again Victor wondered what all the fuss was about.

Still another day he was visiting at his aunt's and appropriated the spherical paperweight that stood on her desk. That prize had stood Aunt Helen five dollars at an antique shop, therefore how did she feel when she saw Victor trip on the porch tiles, the crystal ball fly out of his hands, and split neatly in two?

Perplexing to Youngsters.

It was Sunday and the whole family was there. They all acted as though Victor had taken an axe and killed the cat. He was the meanest little devil alive. He was just everything. And this time he got whipped. That helped everybody a lot. They all felt better. The five-dollar bill had been avenged.

But again Victor didn't know what it was all about.

The point is obvious. The boy associated a ball with one idea. To have it in your hands, to throw it, or to catch it. He didn't associate it with pilfering property, or breakage, or hurting people.

It is easy to see how perplexing it must be to little tots to get their values straightened out.

CHAPTER XXV

"The Cottage by the River"

For a few seconds they stared at the black spot where once a light had glimmered. Then Napoleon turned to his companion and said: "Haven't you better finish your story, old chap—and in double quick time? You've brought me here, but you've not told me why even yet. Have we got to storm the jolly old cottage—or what?"

"I don't know what we ought to do," muttered Guy. "But I'll tell you the position—or, at least, what the position was when I left it—and then we can decide."

"I wish Softon were here," replied Napoleon. "He can work these things out, but I'm no more good at them than you are. What is the position?" All at once he seized Guy's arm, and pulled him towards a bush. "If they've put out their light to try and get a look at us," he whispered, "we'd better not give 'em a chance."

"They couldn't see all this distance," returned Guy. "Still, you're right—we've got to be careful. When that lunatic chap reached the cottage, he didn't go in, but crouched down outside. So I crouched down, too. There were voices inside. I couldn't hear what they said—I wasn't close enough. But the other fellow seemed to hear bits here and there, for every now and then he muttered, and shook his fist, and did all the melodramatic stuff. Then the voices grew louder, and a fine old quarrel seemed to be developing. The madman got excited, too, and once gave an exclamation of rage. I tell you, it was most uncanny."

"No need to confine it to the past tense," murmured Napoleon. "The voices stopped as soon as the madman exclaimed, and—yes, I'd forgotten that—the light was put out suddenly, just as it is now. I dare say they peeped out of the window, but both the mad chap and I squeezed ourselves away so they couldn't spot us. And then someone came to the front door, and looked out."

"Did you get a view of him?" asked Napoleon.

"Only a very vague one. A bit of an outline, you know, of his head."

"What sort of an outline?"

"Oh, I don't know. He seemed to be wearing a sort of merchant service cap or something."

"A merchant service cap?" interposed Napoleon, and groaned softly. "Oh, my God! This is getting almost too lovely to bear!"

"What do you mean? Do you know the fellow?"

"Not yet. And I don't want to. Well, proceed. This gentle, amiable, blue-eyed seaman stood at the door—?"

"And then he went in again, and the quarrel recommenced. I did hear a sentence or two then. Nothing I could piece together, though. One of 'em shouted, 'I tell you, it's got to end to-night—we've got to settle the thing before sunrise.'"

"The sun will rise in about an hour," muttered Napoleon.

"And then another thing I heard was, 'You've bungled it! That was another voice. You've bungled it. Even if we do, what are we going to do with—?' I lost the rest of it, but I thought I heard the word 'upstairs.' Then this mad fellow crouched up to the front-door and tried it, but it was locked. He seemed quite demented. Instead of returning, he crept on round the place, as though he were looking for something."

"And you crept after him?"

"I did. He poked about, and at last entered a sort of barn or out-building."

"And you followed him in?"

"No, thanks! I waited under a bush."

"History repeats itself!"

"Shut up interrupting. I waited till he came out, and—when he came out—?"

"The speaker, shuddered slightly, '—when he came out he was carrying a hatchet.'"

"Good Lord," grunted Napoleon. "And—or—do you suppose he's still wandering about with the hatchet?"

"Don't ask me! It was clear he wanted to get inside with the hatchet."

"Not a bit. Firstly, the result would have been a toss-up, and, secondly, any noise would have brought those two out again—and you suppose they'd have been on my side? It was a sort of three-cornered affair, with me the only one that stood for law and order. It wasn't one to one, it was three to one, and I decided to bunk for my life. You may have a mutter. Goodness knows how long a spouting ensue, or what he was up to. Then we bumped into you—and here we are."

"Here we are," agreed Napoleon. "Though where we soon shall be is quite another matter. I suppose we'd better go on, eh? It's two to three now, instead of one to three. Or, if one of the three has been murdered, as is very probable, it'll be two all—or, rather, two against two and a hatchet. Come along, Guy, let's get it over. I don't suppose we could ever hold our heads if we turned tail now—and I've got to hold up my head. We must go and stop the bloodshed—even if it's only our own."

Cautiously they left the pleasant concealment of the bush, and followed the track to the river bank. The cottage stood on the further bank, and the river barely more than a creek, was traversed by a small bridge. They felt distinctly unhappy as they crept over the bridge, but evidently they had not been seen, and a few moments later they found themselves outside a low hedge that enclosed the cottage grounds. Through a gap in the hedge, they saw a dark figure crouching. Its outline was faint, but unmistakable. So was the outline of something which the figure held in his hand.

"He's got some patience," whispered Guy. "Shall we pounce upon him?"

"No, not for a minute," Napoleon whispered back, as low voices rose from the cottage, and the light suddenly reappeared again. "I'd like to hear a bit of that conversation going on in there before we interrupt it."

They crept a little closer, and now the voices grew more distinct. The window of the room in which the speakers were standing was evidently open. "I knew it wasn't anything!" growled a deep voice. "Just the wind."

"Ay, maybe you're right," came another voice, also deep and gruff. "The wind's getting up—and that'll suit us, I'm thinking."

"How?" demanded the first voice. "It'll mean a rough trip—and I ain't a good sailor."

"But it'll deaden sound, Joe," said the second voice. "And that's what we want, isn't it?"

"Yes, there'll be the hell of a sound," grunted the speaker addressed as Joe. "I'm sure you're right about this even yet, skipper."

"Oh, for God's sake, you're not going to begin that all over again, are you?" exclaimed the speaker addressed as skipper. "Have you got a better plan?"

"Can't say. I have—thanks to your damned bungling."

"Shut up! We're both in this, and we've got to stand by each other. The one thing that won't help us is another quarrel. Anyway, it's a chance, and we've got to take it. It will divert suspicion from us—for a bit, anyhow, till we can clear off. And the only alternative is to wait till things are discovered and to hold out our wrists for the hand-cuffs."

"It may come to that," observed Joe, grimly.

"But it may not," retorted the other. "To hell with your gloominess! D'you suppose I couldn't have been gloomy myself all this time, and given it up—?"

"I wish to God you had!"

"Bah! Wishing's no good. I didn't, so there's an end of it. The prize was too big. Damn it all, you went into this with your eyes open, didn't you? You were going to get your share. And—who knows?—?" His voice grew eager. "We may be lucky, even yet!"

The figure crouching under the wall raised his hatchet, and shook it.

"You know, you don't give me any credit," continued the skipper. "Nycroft is on board, and so is Mirronneau." The figure under the wall again quivered. "And in a couple of minutes, Fyne will be as quiet as they are—and we'll have him on board. When they're all three discovered in the morning, blown to bits—I suppose there'll be a few fragments left—is it likely the police will look any farther for the responsible party—for awhile, at any rate."

There was a silence. Then Joe growled, savagely.

"It's a hell of a business. I've always kept out of this sort of thing before, and I didn't bargain for it."

"Nor did I bargain that Nycroft would come poking his nose into it," retorted the skipper. "That's what started the pitch. He was getting too inquisitive. He'd have wanted his slice."

"And he could have had it, for me."

"Well, he couldn't, for me! It would have been too big a slice! You don't know Nycroft. He'd have grabbed the lot, and found some way of getting us hauled up for the other man's share. He's a devil—or, rather, worse. The speaker chuckled suddenly and sardonically. "And now, Joe—I wouldn't wonder if Nycroft doesn't get saddled with all the blame. It's really rather pretty, when you think of it. No—it wasn't at all a bad idea, Nycroft falling over the cliff."

"Oh, well, that's done. It's these others I'm worrying about now."

"All right, Joe. We'll let 'em stey, eh. And when Fyne and Mirronneau return to their senses and tell their stories to the police, it'll be all bright and shining for you and me, eh?" There was another short silence, and a shadow appeared on the blind, as though one of the speakers had made a movement. "You're a fool to start thinking at the eleventh hour, Joe. There are times when one mustn't think. Let's get upstairs now and see how things are going. This delay's been a confounded nuisance, and we haven't delay any longer."

Then the voices ceased, the shadow disappeared from the blind, and the speakers evidently left the room.

Napoleon and Guy turned to each other.

"Fyne—he's in there!" whispered Guy.

"God, what devils!" muttered Napoleon.

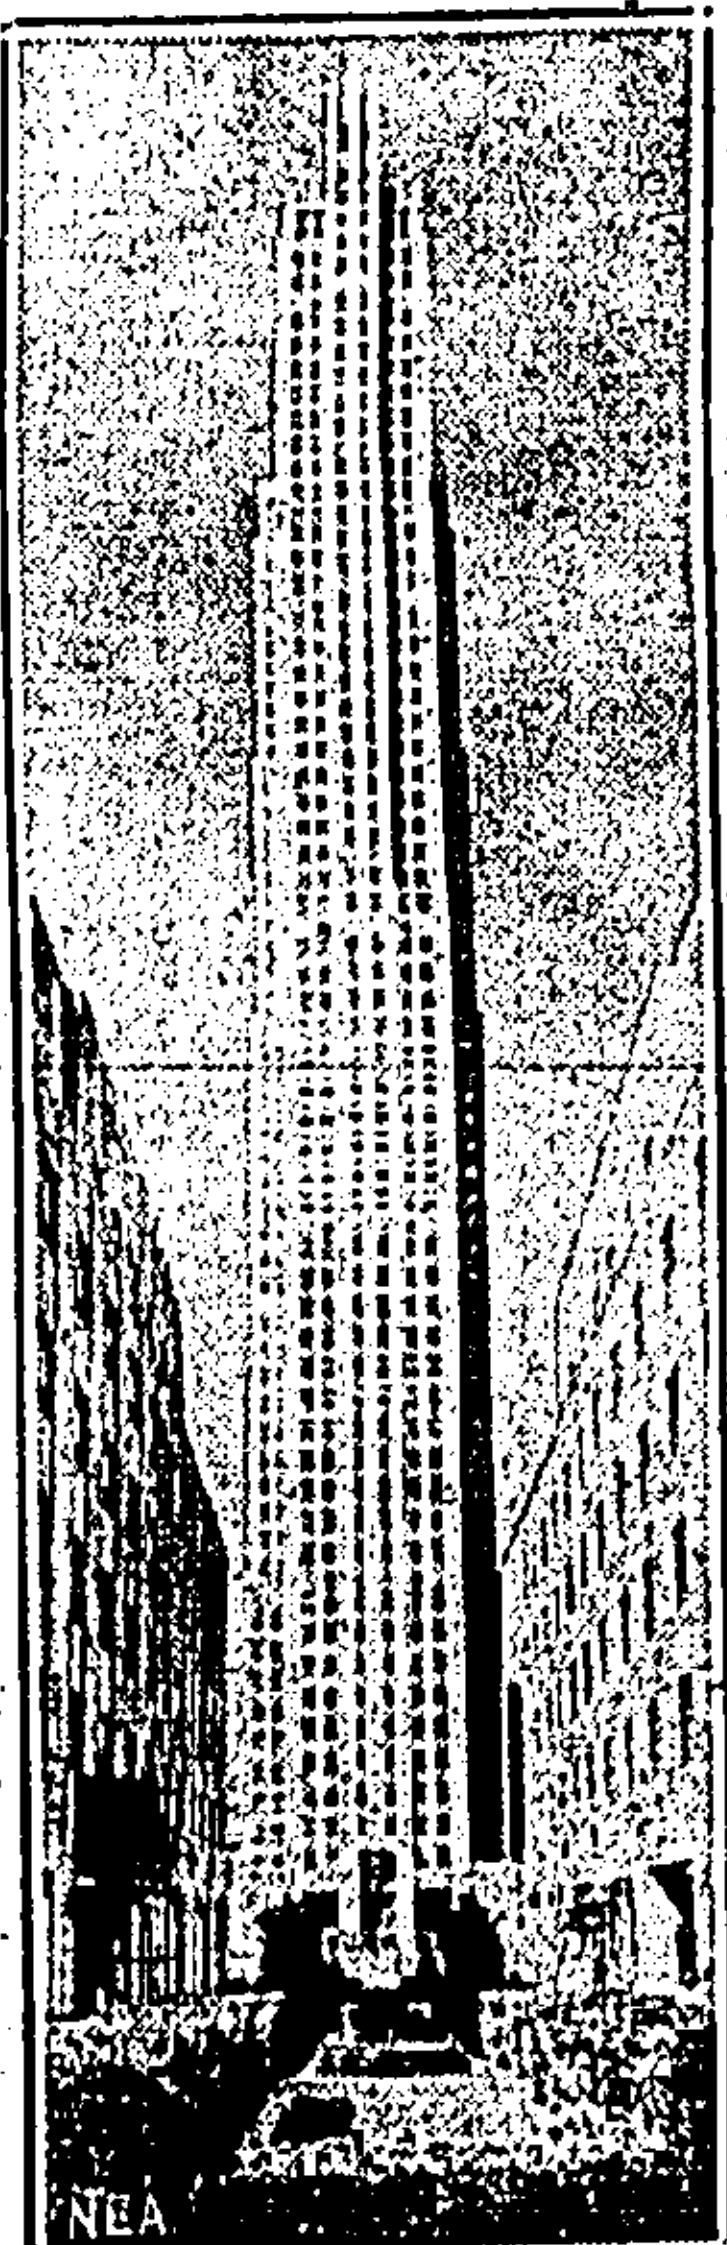

"What shall we do? Rush the place?"

"No—wait. I've an idea our

TOUCH THE POINT TO PAPER
FLOW OUT!

ONE of the most important features of the Parker Pen, to millions of owners, is the smooth, effortless way it makes words. Just a pressureless touch of the gold point to a piece of paper, and the ink flows out in smooth, unbroken strokes! You can really write much longer with a Parker because your fingers tire less quickly. You can write more, too, because one filling of the leak-proof, non-breakable barrel is enough for 6000 words!

And what a beautiful pen! Exquisitely colored, nicely proportioned, and finished in the perfection of a fine piece of jewelry, the Duofold looks and writes like the aristocrat it is.

But, whether you're buying a pen for yourself or as a gift, make sure you select a genuine Parker.

Parker QUINK—For pens that are all-ink, we've perfected Parker Quink—a quick-drying, permanent ink that makes any fountain pen write better. Also washable Quink that can be easily washed out from clothing.

NAVY VISIT TO JAPAN.

A very enjoyable hockey match was played between the Kobe R. & A.C. Ladies' team and a team from the Cumberland. The game was close throughout and although the Ladies lost—the score being 2-1—it was only by a narrow margin on standard of play. Perhaps a draw would have been a truer result, says the Japan Chronicle.

Lt. S. Pares and A.D. Simpson scored for the Cumberland and Miss Evelyn Smith for the K.R. & A.C. Mr. T. H. Evans umpired with his usual efficiency.

The Cumberland team were entertained to lunch after the match and presented the Ladies' team with a Silver Cup and bouquet of red and white carnations ribboned with the colours of the teams.

TALES OF FAR
YUNNANSTRANGE CUSTOMS OF SIMPLE FOLK

"Yunnan" was the subject of a lecture by the Rev. R. F. Lankester before an interested audience in the Cathedral last night. A London Missionary Society worker who has travelled extensively in this comparatively little known Chinese province, he comes here with fresh impressions, and because these impressions hold little in common with accepted ideas of the life of a solitary white man amongst an interesting and wholly lovable people, they are particularly interesting.

In prefacing his talk on the subject of "Life in Yunnan" the Rev. R. F. Lankester said: "Somehow when speaking of the China of to-day to people here one feels you yourselves are so close to the country that you ought to know as much about it as I do. And yet one realises that here in Hongkong, although you are living amongst and with the Chinese, yet in some ways you are far separated from the China as I see it. We read about events taking place in the interior of China, of floods and famines, of war and brigandage, of militarism and Bolshevism, and we may have got an idea that the whole of that vast land of China is in a sort of turmoil."

"Such conditions may exist and yet they flow over China just like the water off a duck's back, and you get the great majority of the people in the interior of China living their everyday life in comparative peace; just concerned in earning the few dollars with which they obtain their daily rice and vegetables, their lodging and cotton clothes, their tobacco and fragrant tea; bringing up their families, carrying out their duties towards their relatives, marrying off their daughters, obtaining for themselves daughters-in-law, and incidentally wives for their sons; burying their dead and reverencing their ancestors—a people who have perhaps more than any other the secret of happiness and contentment in the midst of danger and difficulties."

Soul of Simplicity.

"I have had the privilege of living for many years amongst people in the interior of China (as some of you, too, may have had) associating with them in their homes, attending joyful ceremonies in my friends' houses, weddings and birthdays and reunions; and also meeting with them in their sorrows, at deathbeds, funerals and partings; working with them in church, school and hospital and in philanthropic and relief work. And in many of their ways one may sometimes feel they are simple and ignorant, and yet their simplicity may be another name for kindness and honesty; their ignorance may be just the lack of knowledge on many things that it is best they should not know."

"And so I felt myself living there as one amongst a great nation. I sometimes look in the eyes of some of those old Chinese men and women and I seem to see there a wonderful understanding about life and the things that really matter—a sort of tolerant sympathy with those Westerners who demand more from life than it seems reasonably possible for them to obtain. This view I got as I mixed with these people of Yunnan."

The speaker then proceeded to take his audience on an imaginary journey from Hongkong, in the first stage accomplished by a two days' steamer trip to the Indo-China port of Haiphong, thence through rice-fields and jungles on another two days' journey by train, through beautiful mountain scenery,—climbing, climbing until the ancient city of Yunnanfu, on a 6,400 foot plateau, is ultimately reached.

Picturesque Setting.

A city of 150,000 inhabitants with a like number peopling the villages strewn around a great plain, a pattern of rice fields and tree-flanked irrigation dykes, and in the distance the outlines of a great encircling mountain range. To assimilate the best in Yunnan climatic conditions, winter and spring, were the best for a visit, as it was a period of sunny days with just that sharp nip in the morning to induce hurried dressing and breakfast before a warm fire. Summer days there were, but certainly no warmer than in Hongkong.

The speaker said that three years ago he made a journey on foot from Yunnanfu to Burma, a distance which should be no more than 400 miles as the crow flies, but which on account of the menacing mountain paths by which it was mostly negotiated, was twice that number of miles and took 40 days, of which 38 were spent on the road, at an average rate of 25 miles a day.

Wonderful Pilgrimage.

Of the pleasures and adventures on that road Mr. Lankester still retained a clear impression which he proceeded to pass on to his audience. It was in a strain sometimes serious, sometimes humorous, but generally conveying the idea that for him at any rate the journey was not so much of an adventure as a determination to learn all that is to be learned on a path seldom taken by the foreigner. Life on the road consisted of packing up very early in the morning and travelling by the light of the moon which brought out the beautiful mountain scenery through which the party, which included also a Dr. Bradley, passed. Mr. Lankester found in these simple conditions of life amidst nature an unutterable feeling of peace and contentment, far removed from the strife and bustle of an existence outside.

There were times, however, when worry and anxiety intervened, but treated in the way Mr. Lankester did the many trials on that long journey, one was made to feel that these were merely diversions sharpening the anticipation for the other delights ahead. His story of a Chinese escort who deserted them on the verge of entering a bandit infested zone through which their road lay, was told with a touch of whimsical humour. As a reason for the desertion, the escort said that he had pushed along through the danger zone with the party, they would ultimately have to return the same way alone, this in spite of the fact that they were armed and the party was not.

"It seems," said Mr. Lankester, "that these soldiers were under the impression that we were protecting them, instead of their protecting us." (Laughter).

Native Curiosity.

Other incidents in a humorous light had to do with an undue curiosity of the natives, extending to an unabashed interest by the womenfolk intruding into bedtime hours.

The snow-capped peak of Talfu, soaring some 15,000 feet above the western fringes of the Yunnan plateau was reached, and then the journey took them over two rivers, one of them the mighty Mekong, spanned by chain bridges, the chains being of Chinese iron surviving the 400 years since they were built.

The people met with on the way were shy on first acquaintance, but this shyness was soon replaced by a friendliness that endured. So much undue emphasis has been attached to externals, that it was refreshing to hear the lecturer's views on the subject. He met a notable who in extending friendly greetings, asked in words, paralleling the Cantonese form of introduction: Faan Kwei, kwat shing-ming? ("Foreign Devil, what is your honourable name?"). This "foreign devil" had, the lecturer said, become a term without any particular meaning, and in the instance related, opened the way to a very polite conversation.

Aboriginal Tribes.

Mr. Lankester next dealt with aboriginal tribes to be found in those regions, who were distinct from the Chinese and in one instance possessed a perfectly comprehensive system of picture writing. Living amongst one of these tribes he found a Swedish missionary with the inevitable name of Johansen, a solitary white man who had successfully fought an attack of typhoid and who when found by Mr. Lankester was engaged in translating the Gospel of St. Matthew into the Payi language.

No new land was discovered without the additional interest of weird doings, and Mr. Lankester quoted Dr. Rock, a companion on one of his travels, as authority for the fact that sorcerers were found amongst a people who could enter the trunks of trees, twist steel swords into a knot with seeming ease, and dance on steep roofs of buildings.

Yunnanfu Customs.

To return to Yunnanfu, Mr. Lankester stated that it was fast developing into a modern city with nearly 180 miles of motor roads extending out of the city where none had existed before. Sedan chairs and ponies not so very long ago were the only means of getting about, but with "reforms" the ricksha and the aeroplane came, it would appear, at about the same time (laughter), then motorcars, and now bicycles appear to be en vogue. (Laughter). Customs associated with weddings and funerals were much the same in Yunnanfu as in other parts of China, and in the case of funeral ceremonies amongst the better-class, a coffin of fossilised wood found in Yunnan was favoured as least likely to rot, but on the contrary to endure for hundreds of years.

The executioner's parade at Yunnanfu was another sight often encountered, when the condemned man was led along in a ricksha to the execution ground, with a bag on which was inscribed the crime for which he was condemned stuck to his back and two escorts walking on either side. The captive bore a ghastly look.

"I have seen something in Hongkong reminding me of this man in the ricksha," Mr. Lankester con-

SWEEPSTAKE VETO PROTESTSIR W. DAVISON'S VIEWSWAYS OF GETTING THE MONEY

The announcement that the Government has under consideration the confiscation of sweepstake prizes entering this country is likely to lead to a storm of protest by purchasers of tickets and others who uphold sweepstakes in principle.

Sir W. Davison, M.P., said to a reporter:

"It is impossible as well as foolish to try to make criminals of people who win sweepstake prizes. It would be interesting to know whether the authorities propose to confiscate the winnings of British citizens at Monte Carlo and elsewhere."

"Whatever the Government's decision may be, it is, of course, impossible for it to prevent anyone instructing an agent to buy lottery tickets in Dublin, Paris, or Rome, and, if successful, to arrange for the money to be paid into banks at those places for remittance to Great Britain as directed."

"Does the Government propose to appropriate winnings on the racecourse? It is difficult to appreciate the distinction between winning a prize in a lottery—sweepstake and winning a prize through the tote, which is a Government institution."

"It will be remembered that the fashionable crowd at Ascot during four days subscribed £300,000 to the tote alone. Is it to be allowed to continue when the winner of a prize in a lottery is made a criminal?"

It was also a man in a ricksha, with another man pulling the ricksha and two others on either side guarding him, and he had the same ghastly, hopeless look on his face. It was in Ice House Street, and I am told he was a broker (laughter). I don't know what the man on either side of him was, but if he had wanted to escape it would not be anything more than financial depression, and even if he got away from Hongkong he could not escape that."

Needs of the Land.

The lecturer next dealt with missionary work in Yunnan which latterly had been taken up with practical charitable enterprise. He spoke of the measures he headed for the relief of the suffering after the great explosion of munitions had laid half the city in ruins some years ago, and suggested that in this living up to the religion they preached, they were doing the thing which could impress most. In the past mistakes had been committed, but he was happy to say that the requirements had been now more fully understood. This practical side of Christian work he stressed in an appeal for public support in a field where educationally and socially, progress had not kept pace with the rest of China, and much still required to be done.

At the close of the lecture, Dean Swann expressed the gratitude of the audience to Mr. Lankester, whose remarks referring to Hongkong contained home truths they could appreciate. The meeting being held in the Cathedral, they could not express their gratitude in the ordinary way, and he called upon the audience to proceed about this in another way, equally effective, by raising their arms in the Italian salute.

NEW YORK STOCK
CLOSE

According to Messrs. Swan Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done was 2,500,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: "The market receded slowly and inexplicably near the close after an early rally of as much as two points due to bullish business news. Patino Mines and Enterprises Consolidated Inc. touched a new high for the year due to European cartel being granted to the Company which will cause an increased production allotment. United States Bonds firmed. The Silver market reached a new high. The American Iron and Steel Institute reports steel production at 27.1% of capacity."

Our New York office cable: Stocks—The market continues to move in a narrow range awaiting developments. The undertone is firm.

Wheat—Action on the Liverpool market caused a sharply higher opening but profit-taking caused it to shade. We still think that inflation developments will bring higher prices.

Cotton—The market was steady on Russian recognition outlook and weakness of the dollar exchange but the volume of Southern offerings at 10 cents for December suggests farmers' preference. The Government loan of 10 cents with acreage restrictions. Silver—The market was firm on speculative buying and also on purchases of investors as a protection against further depreciation of the dollar.

Cable received at 11:45 p.m. during our night service—Cable purchase policy is nearing crisis. Feeling generally is bullish on inflationary expectations.

The R.F.C. gold price yesterday was U.S.$33.45 up 13 cents.

The opening figure yesterday of the Dow-Jones Industrial average was 96.22.

MY CRITICISM OF YOUTH

unemployment and general uncertainty. They it is who have a vision of something better, but seem afraid to justify their dissatisfaction by bringing a better state of things into existence.

I criticize this generation for their acquiescence, for their carelessness, for their lack of initiative; but I believe they can do great things if only there is the will.

It is not that they want leaders; they can do their work as individuals with equally effective result. They need the faith and the belief that something can be done, and that they are the people to do it.

We ask them to be more serious before it is too late. Let them have the will to build now on the ruins of a sad and unhappy system, and play their games within the walls of a new Jerusalem rather than on the outskirts of a dying and decaying town that contains the hopelessness of the past. Let them keep their eyes on the vision of something their own souls are yearning for, and not be content with things as they are, even if it is satisfying to criticize and bemoan yet not to act.

The whole world will shortly be in their hands to mould or finally to destroy, and no one minds the destruction if only he can be certain that from the ashes will arise a land of greater beauty and greater happiness.

REIGN OF TERROR SERIOUS CONDITION OF SIAM AFFAIRS

Singapore, Nov. 13. A condition approaching "a reign of terror" now exists in Siam as a sequel to the recent rebellion led by one of the Siamese Princes.

According to messages received here from Bangkok, wholesale arrests have been made by the Secret Service Police and it is alleged that the prisoners are being kept in anything but satisfactory conditions.

A number of prisoners have been tried before closed military courts and these tribunals are still busy with a long list of cases.

It is estimated that the revolt thus far has cost Siam nearly £1,000,000.—Reuter.

BRITAIN WATCHING.

CUBAN SITUATION NOT A RESPONSIBILITY

London, Nov. 13. Replying to a question by Mr. Gratton Doyle, Capt. Anthony Eden said the Government was closely watching events in Cuba but did not feel that Mr. Doyle's suggestion that Britain consult the United States with a view to averting further loss of life would serve any useful purpose at present.

The British Minister had reported that there had been no British casualties and that appropriate steps would be taken to afford protection to British lives.—Reuter.

A motor lorry and motor cycle were involved in a collision in Chater Road, near the junction of Ice House Street, during the tiffin interval yesterday. Both vehicles suffered some damage, but no person was hurt.

RUN-AWAY TRAWLER.

NAVAL GUARD CARRIED OFF
BY VESSEL.

London, Nov. 13.
The "kidnapping" of a naval guard on the high seas by a trawler, which led to a hide-and-seek dance with a gunboat and destroyer, provided a twenty-four hour comedy for all except the Admiralty.

Two British trawlers, the Lucida and the Gwendlan were spotted in allegedly prohibited waters of the Outer Hebrides and were ordered to heave to by the gunboat. A leading seaman boarded the Lucida, which immediately sped off at full speed.

The gunboat ordered the Gwendlan to proceed to Stornoway without escort, which she did, and wireless for assistance from the destroyer, H.M.S. Viceroy.

Both warships vainly scoured the seas for the missing trawler and finally returned to Fleetwood, where, twenty-four hours later the Lucida arrived and was re-arrested.—Reuter.

"SHADOWS BY THE SEA"

lunatic may help us."
The lunatic—if such he was—now raised himself cautiously, and reared up to his full height. He crouched to the window and examined it. He appeared to be considering the plan of effecting an entrance here. But then he changed his mind, and walked softly round the wall till he became hidden by an angle.

"He's going to the front door," whispered Napoleon. "He'll probably wait there, till they come out."

"With—his beastly hatchet."

"Yes."

"We can't let that happen, can we?"

"It would serve 'em right if it did happen," retorted Napoleon.

"I tell you, Guy, I've only got one thought at the moment, and that's poor old Fyne. The dirty beast! Maybe someone's got to get hurt before we can help him. The balance of power isn't in our favour yet, you know."

"I wish I'd kept that revolver on me! Like a fool, I put it away."

"Steady, now! I can hear 'em coming down again. We'd better nip round to where we can watch the front-door. Interesting things are going to happen there."

"Suppose the interesting things happen to us?" remarked Guy, as they moved forward.

"Well," answered Napoleon, "I'm told heaven's quite a nice place."

They reached the cottage wall, and, following the identical route taken by the foreigner, gained the angle—By the porch—stood the foreigner. His eyes were fastened on the front door. The front door opened.

ANOTHER ERROR IN THE BOOKS

There is a saying that "The man who never makes a mistake never gets anywhere, while the man who makes too many loses his job." You cannot give your full attention to business if you are not feeling up to the mark, and it is then that errors creep into your work which will certainly retard your progress and even may lead to dismissal.

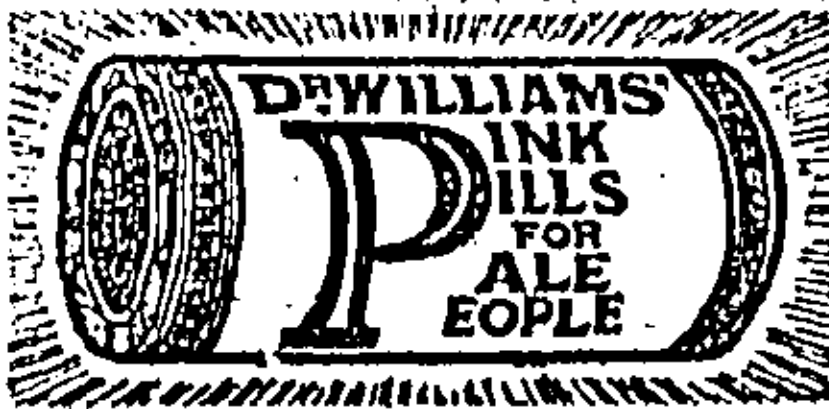

One of the chief causes of that "off-colour" feeling is an impoverished condition of the blood, which brings in its train nervous disorders, depression, forgetfulness, "brain lag", drowsiness during business hours, yet an inability to sleep soundly and restfully at night.

Don't delay, when you find yourself becoming inefficient, lacking in energy, nervous, run-down, when your memory shows signs of failing and you make mistakes, but begin a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once.

These re-vitalizing, rejuvenating pills are invaluable to the office worker and others in sedentary jobs, for they quickly restore failing mental powers, build up the nerves, revive appetite, energy and spirit, by their remarkable purifying, enriching tonic action on the blood.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are recommended for both sexes, in all cases of anaemia (blood impoverishment) and its attendant evils, also for rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, the after effects of malaria and other fevers. They are world renowned as a remedy for the special ailments of women. Your chemist can supply you with

BENEFIT DANCE.

TRAGIC ACCIDENT ABOARD LOCAL SUBMARINE

A benefit dance, in aid of the dependents of the late Petty Officer Sells, of H. M. submarine Proteus, will be held at the Garrison Lecture Hall to-morrow evening, commencing at 8 p.m.

Petty Officer Sells was the victim of a tragic accident aboard the submarine Proteus, only a few days before the ship was due to return to Hongkong from the summer cruise.

A torpedo carried away inside the ship during operations, fell on the unfortunate man, badly crushing him. He was taken ashore to hospital but succumbed to multiple injuries a few hours later.

One of the most tragic features of the accident is the fact that P.O. Sells is survived by his wife and baby son. The baby was born a fortnight after P. O. Sells came to

GOVERNMENTS AND THE PRESS

One of the most striking and gratifying changes which has come over Officialdom in England during recent years has been the increased facility given to the Press in the matter of securing information on matters of public concern. Time was, not so many years ago, when, for all intents and purposes, Government doors were closed in the face of journalistic enquirers. Or, at best, if information was eventually vouchsafed, a general Press communiqué would be issued, with the result that the fruits of one newspaper's enterprise were made a present to others also. This unsatisfactory method is still periodically encountered in Hongkong. It is obviously unfair, and is thoroughly at variance with the practice now followed in the Mother Country. To-day, pressmen who call on several Government departments in search of information encounter not the slightest difficulty either in establishing contact or in securing exclusive information. Attached to each Ministry is a Publicity Section, complete with staff, which exists for no other purpose than to furnish the Press with official statements. No attempt is made to be secretive, neither is there any question of permitting other newspapers to profit from the enterprise of their rivals. "First come, first served" is the principle on which these official Publicity Sections work. This, after all, is as it should be. Government departments at Home do not arrogate to themselves a position, over and above the public, to which they have no rightful claim. They realise that, if anything, the boot is on the other foot—that the public, through the medium of the Press, has a right to information on matters of general concern. Here in Hongkong, there are officials who act on this principle, whose helpful attitude we freely acknowledge, but there are others—the majority, unfortunately—who are so hide-bound with the traditions of the past that they invariably "play for safety" by taking refuge in silence when approached for official information. Happily, we have as head of the Administration at the moment a Governor who, unlike some of his predecessors, thoroughly believes in taking the Press into his confidence. There are lesser lights in the Government, however, whose attitude is distinctly otherwise. It is too much to hope that during Sir William Peel's incumbency, a general instruction may go forth to all departments to follow the Home practice, thus opening up to the public some of the avenues which are now wrongfully closed to enquirers on its behalf?

NOTES OF THE DAY

RUSSIA AND AMERICA

Negotiations between the United States and Soviet Russia seeking the establishment of diplomatic relations are being hampered by issues which M. Litvinoff anticipated would be ignored by mutual consent. At the eleventh hour, President Roosevelt has dragged out most of the skeletons into the cold light of day and consequently, recognition seems likely to be delayed. The move is surprising, suggesting as it does that for some reason a change of attitude has come over Washington. America's friendly gesture, seized upon approvingly in Russia, may resolve itself into a cool discussion upon points of difference between the two countries. M. Litvinoff has had to consult with Moscow before proceeding further.

AMERICA AND JAPAN

The conclusion first likely to be drawn is that Japan's strong antagonism to a closer rapprochement between the United States and Russia has contributed something to events and it is easy to quote the decision to move the U.S. Fleet into the Pacific as significant of the President's anxiety to appease Japanese opinion. The two things coming together look curiously like circumstantial confirmation of the suspicion that America's Far Eastern policy has undergone a change, though a swift denial would probably follow a direct question to the State Department. Nevertheless, M. Litvinoff is likely to feel, if he becomes involved in technical discussion on debt claims and counter-claims, that he has been invited to Washington under somewhat false pretences.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA

Meanwhile, the seriousness of developments in the Far East cannot be overlooked. Russia and Japan cannot maintain relations on their present delicate basis without a break somewhere at some time and with provocateurs active, stirring up hostility, it may come at any time. The story of the sinking of two Japanese warships near Kamchatka must have been of Japanese origin, although the purpose may defy analysis. Experience of recent months has suggested that if Japan seeks a cassio belli she will find one easily enough, without worrying about absurd concoctions.

AMERICA'S PROBLEM

Will the next chapter of American recovery be printed on greenbacks? The question still remains unanswered although President Roosevelt is being pressed for a decision. The pressure comes from currency inflationists and sound money advocates alike. But between the President's immediate plans and runaway currency inflation there is a great gulf fixed. Credit expansion is still logical step in the recovery programme, although the thinly veiled opposition of the banks to the whole plan is creating unexpected obstacles. As Mr. J. M. Keynes has pointed out, the need now is for expenditure on capital goods—that is, on those things which go into the building and equipping of manufacturing plants, and whose production employs a vast army of labour of all types. Expenditure of this kind must be financed through credit. A prospect of currency inflation could only hinder credit expansion because no-one wishes to tie up money in loans when it appears that he will be repaid in currency of less value.

COMMODITY DOLLAR

The need for adjusting the dollar's value to changed conditions is recognised by the Administration. Justice to debtors, who are trying to meet obligations in dollars which represent much more goods and effort than those they borrowed, calls for adjustment. But the President fortunately still jibs at achieving this through currency inflation which might easily become a source of continuing injustice to creditors. His principal advisers at the moment are Prof. James Harvey Rogers and Prof. George F. Warren both of whom are "commodity dollar" men. Recent policy has been directed towards the creation of the commodity dollar—whose value would be adjustable to accord with changing commodity prices and the President is pledged to give it every chance to prove itself. Europe's experience with currency inflation offers a grave warning against the issuance of printing-press money. Nevertheless certain political opinion are advocating virtual fiat currency. Farmers, anxious to see another substantial price rise in their products before crops leave the farms, have a formidable representation in Congress. And it may safely be predicted that unless the Administration succeeds in bringing about substantial increase in farm prices, the country will be faced with the prospect of currency inflation in its most dangerous form.

MY CRITICISM OF YOUTH

By OLIVER BALDWIN

THE war-born children of every nation become a problem to their nation the moment they cross the threshold of manhood and take on their first responsibilities. They start with a handicap which is not often realised and which finds its origin in those dark days of war when, under-nourished and over-sensitive, they pass a childhood of mass-inflicted inferiority. When they are young they are forced to live in a world of their own. They are of little consequence; the father or elder brother is the hero of the home; their own opinions are valueless, and they gradually develop an inferiority complex, often coupled with a form of jealousy bound to produce trouble for them in the future.

These children have grown to manhood in a mad world in which nothing seems secure and no one appears to know the reason why things do not go on as they did before the war.

Idols have been smashed before their eyes; slogans are shouted about to be done within the year, answers to their questions are hopeless and inadequate.

All around them they see wealth and poverty, yet their ears are always filled with talk of the struggle for economic existence, and the necessity for economy and self-denial.

Soon they are launched into the world to add to the number of strugglers and fighters, and so intense is the battle that immorality in their methods of business appears an easy way for their weary feet.

This strain produces a quality that was not very apparent in pre-war generations. That of unreluctance. It seems that the post-war youth has little pride in the fact that when he says he will do something he is in duty bound to keep his promise. He is perfectly content to say he forgot, or that he had not time, or that he did something else instead.

He has little desire to perfect himself in his profession, and little enough interest in it as such. He hesitates to acquire knowledge, and seems devoid of an inquiring mind. Maybe he mistrusts knowledge; maybe he has become hopeless in seeing the strange use to which knowledge is put. He is old in soul before his time, but younger in mind than many a generation before him.

He is content with things as they are. He does not go forth to seek, but is content to drift with the tide. His energies are diverted from doing to watching; he justifies his existence by the sorceries of horse-race gambling or games. They are the whole of his life-interest, the work and the recreation combined.

For a long time I believed that other writers misjudged the modern youth; I do not think so now, but I do realise it is not their fault. Theirs were not the hands that formed and fashioned the state of society in which we live.

It was not they who murdered their fathers and brothers in four years of war. They are not responsible for the world's state of nerves. They know the state of things, but they have no desire to take part in bettering them.

They avoid responsibility whenever possible, to such an extent that those who are seeking for an opportunity of trust are often denied it because they are of this generation.

Nothing outside their own little world seems to interest them, and their answer to any political or social injustice is either, "I don't know anything about that," or "why should I worry?" In the face of this, one feels singularly impatient.

I find it very difficult to rely on their word, since, to them, it is of no consequence that they tell you something false. It is probably due to lack of thought in the original statement; a carelessness that they are used to, and that their own generation accepts without question and with understanding.

That there is a sullen dissatisfaction with their home life is obvious, but it is rare that a definite break with family tradition is made, since the decision calls for more determination and sacrifice than they are capable of showing.

I feel that this new generation is seeking for something they cannot define; that they are conscious of the futility of so much they have been taught and yet are incapable of deciding for themselves what it is.

They pay little attention to the opinions of their elders, and yet can never give a constructive alternative. They mock at much their elders hold sacred, yet worship things of even less value.

A love of speed, of exhilaration, may merely be sensuous, but it is amazingly common among this generation. A disregard for life is also common, and the number of suicides is greater among these youths than has been known for many years.

They show an inability to stand criticism which is strikingly feminine in its essence and is the result of that sensitiveness which their childhood produced in the realisation of their insignificance during the war years.

They have no respect for Age, and that is Age's fault, for the world Age has made calls for no respect and no admiration. In this I see salvation, but, again, the lack of respect is negative. They produce nothing to take its place.

They have a saner and healthier attitude towards the opposite sex than their elders, and they are less shy and awkward in company. They are not behindhand in expressing their opinions, yet these opinions are generally critical and unconstructive.

By their acceptance of things as they are, they deny the creative instinct. They accept and criticise, but refuse to build.

It is because so much in our existence is old and out-worn that we become tired and lazy about it. We accept, and find it unsatisfying. What we need is something to create—some new world in which we can take a hand in the moulding of it; in which we can feel we are creating, and, having created, have something new and fresh and bright to hold on to.

That new thing, that new world, can be made by this post-war generation. It can only be made by them. They it is who have seen its rottenness from their earliest years, have experienced, and are experiencing, the reactions to its gross materialism in the shape of

The Very Idea!

BRIGHTENING US UP

By Eddie Kelly, Storm-trooper.

ALL this correspondence in a morning contemporary about Indians getting their shirts out suggests that we should have a brighter Fashion-For-Men movement in Hongkong. Edward Kelly, with his usual insolence, has decided to support the movement, and begins to-day's hints with the Volunteers and local Regiments in mind.

IN conjunction with Mr. Firth Bernard, we have decided to brighten up things considerably in the local Army and Volunteer forces. Henceforth our motto is going to be "New Pants For Hongkong's Parade Grounds".

Take the Volunteers. The big trouble with these people is that with the present uniform they look too much like soldiers. The whole art of soldiering is to deceive the enemy, and our idea of army uniforms is to create a general idea of a lot of young men out for a nice long stroll.

Also, our army fashions are going to change with the seasons. In future, Hongkong soldiers will wear their shirts out during the winter and get their shirts out during the summer. Nothing like being a bit original.

Take hats, for instance. They're far too orthodox. Of course, the members of the Scottish Company are allowed to wear bonnets, but that's only a tidily-winking concession. Probably there wasn't enough left to go round for the brims.

As the Anzacs are allowed to wear the feathers out of an emu's tail in their hats, we have decided to provide quail, pheasant, sparrow and parrot feathers for the other units. The Mounted Machine Gun Troop will, of course, be provided with horse feathers.

Then again, we will have to make war more comfortable, especially if we're going to spend so much money on natty uniforms. Fighting in Hongkong during the summer would be strictly taboo. Of course, we could go away to cooler places during a local summer war. Canada, for instance, where the beer is much cheaper.

In the winter we could slip back to Hongkong. Fighting along these lines would be good; not only for the soldiers, but for the shipping companies. Special tourist rates could be provided for civilians, who would be allowed to mix with the troops en route.

The civilians could be counted upon to improve the war, as they would provide the necessary touch of enthusiasm and encouragement so often lacking in past wars. Admission charges could be fixed so as to make the war practically self-supporting. As a matter of fact, with American film rights thrown in, there's no reason why we couldn't make a little over for the Canteen funds.

There'd be no rough stuff in our wars. Anyway, it's about time men got rid of the childish idea that they go to war to hurt each other.

You rush up to a man in Dea Voux road, and stick over a pin into him—let alone a big, long bayonet—and see what happens to you. In ten minutes you'd be arrested and charged with wounding with intent. If that's not war, what is?

The word "battle" would be absolutely taboo in our war. As an alternative we would suggest that the word "bottle" be substituted. It would gain an enormous number of recruits for the Volunteers. If they knew they were going to fight on the bottle-front.

GENERAL KNOWLEDGE TEST

Someone said the other day that average Hongkong person had the mentality of a child of six. The Editor says very nastily that it's because they read this column, but we take no notice of him. Anyway, just to test out our Great and Admiring Public we have set a series of questions. The person giving the most accurate reply will be given, as first prize, a night out (if it's a woman) or a thick ear (if it's a man).

Q. 1.—Who said he would rather have written what than take what place?

Q. 2.—Who stumbled on landing where, and making a quick recovery, said what?

Q. 3.—Who said that when she died what would be given on what?

Q. 4.—Who never did what again on hearing of the wreck of the what?

Q. 5.—Who said "Take away that what," and on what occasion?

Q. 6.—Who put down his what for whom, when she was about to step in a what?

"When he calls on you again, can you just mention that your father might consider a position with his firm?"

LOCAL RADIO-PHONE PLANS OFF

IN ABEYANCE
DEPRESSION STAYS ENTERPRISE

(Telegraph Special.)

Although technically feasible, radio telephone communication between Hongkong and London, through purely British channels, is unlikely to be established in the near future, according to information secured in London by the Telegraph from the General Post Office and Imperial and International Communications, Ltd.

There was some prospect of such a service some two years ago, before the worst effects of the depression were felt, when the Hongkong Telephone Co., Ltd., was interesting itself in the idea, but at the moment the matter is in abeyance.

When the scheme eventually materialises, it is most probable that Hongkong will work through Singapore, after a station has been established at that port. At present, however, the heavy costs of providing the service, together with the probable lack of steady traffic for a time, place the project in the realm of an undertaking not yet commercially worth while.

CO-OPERATION NECESSARY.

Enquiries made at the Publicity Department of the G.P.O. show that there is a desire on the part of the postal authorities to extend a radio phone service to the Far East; indeed, the G.P.O. would welcome any move in this direction, provided it were financially sound. It was pointed out that the feasibility of such a scheme had been shown by the fact that the tourist liner Belgenland, whilst in Hongkong harbour some years ago, had experienced no difficulty in getting into communication with London.

Hongkong's best plan, it was pointed out, would be to work through some other station, such as Singapore or Shanghai.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL.

According to Imperial and International Communications, Ltd., it might be the best method eventually for the Hongkong end to be operated through the Government Broadcasting Station, although the Company would be prepared to work in with any reputable concern which could work on a reasonable co-operative basis.

With regard to the probable rates, the General Post Office states that, after a certain limit, distance is not a factor; for example, the rate between London and Australia is the same as for that between London and Canada.

22 PER MINUTE.

This rate is 22 per minute's use of the service, and Hongkong would most likely come under the same scale. Eventually, however, the rates would most likely come down, when increased traffic warrants the step.

A factor which would greatly help in hastening the inauguration of the service would be the prospect of a "field" which could be served through Hongkong, such as important cities in China, but until there is the probability of such an opening, it is felt in London that there can be little likelihood of British service becoming feasible.

FINANCE PARAMOUNT.

To quote the words of an official of Imperial and International Communications, "although the matter was on the tapis some two years ago, circumstances which have since arisen have caused it to be held in abeyance. The matter is a financial one, and until the outlook is better than it now is, there is little likelihood of the link between London and Hongkong being provided."

HOW NADIR SHAH WAS KILLED

FIVE BULLETS AT CLOSE RANGE

ACT OF REVENGE

London, Nov. 13. According to information just received in London, the murder of King Nadir of Afghanistan was committed at a school prize-giving ceremony, on the anniversary of the execution of Ghulam Nabi presumably from motives of revenge.

King Nadir, who was accompanied by the present King and the Minister for war, was killed instantly, five shots being fired at him while he was speaking to the students. The murderer was Abdul Khalid, who was arrested immediately.

He had previously been under arrest, with his father, as being implicated in a plot against the late King in November last, but was pardoned. Khalid's father was a servant of Ghulam Nabi, a prominent adherent of ex-King Amanullah, by whom he was appointed Ambassador in Angora in 1929. In the following year, Ghulam Nabi was dismissed by King Nadir. He returned to Afghanistan in 1932 and was executed shortly afterwards.

When the murder took place last week the Prime Minister, the Foreign Minister and the Trade Minister were on a tour in the Northern Provinces of Afghanistan, to attend the opening of a new road from Kabul to Mazarikhalid. These Ministers at once telegraphed their allegiance to the new King.

A brawl between two hawkers in the central district yesterday, resulted in Tse Hung, aged 50, the older of the two, being conveyed to hospital with injuries to the head.

The possibility that the victim had jumped off the tram whilst it was still in motion before arriving at the Arsenal Street stop is ascribed as the cause of an accident which occurred at 10.30 yesterday morning, when Lui Lim, living at 8 Mallory St. was conveyed to hospital with a fractured skull. The man's condition is grave.

A banished from Singapore, Lau Fuk, 49, was sentenced to nine months' hard labour by Mr. Balfour at the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of returning from banishment from Hongkong for a period of ten years. Inspector Vincent said the man had no criminal record in Hongkong, but was banished from Singapore as a counterfeiter. He was sent away from Hongkong in September 24 last and had thus been away only six weeks out of ten years.

OUR DANCING IS NOT SO BAD

SAYS BALLROOM EXPERT

MR. ANDREW'S IMPRESSIONS

Mr. J. A. Andrew, whose ballroom demonstrations with Miss Ursula Preston at the Hongkong and Peninsula Hotels have been the talk of the town this month, had some nice things to say about local dancing to-day on the eve of his departure with Miss Preston for Japan.

Mr. Andrew said that so far as he had seen, the local standard of ballroom dancing fell but very little short of that found in the provinces in England.

As amateur dancers Hongkong had no reason to feel that they disgraced themselves on the floor.

At the hotels he had noticed that the English style of ballroom dancing was favoured, and that the American influence was but very slight.

Not only that, but he had discovered that local dancers were keen, and he had every reason to feel that they appreciated expositions of the English style.

On the other hand, the tendency was to try and learn correct dancing by merely watching, and this was practically impossible.

MERELY MEANS TO AN END.

Mr. Andrew explained that he felt the hesitancy of local dancers to improve their dancing by taking instruction was largely due to the fact that dancing was regarded in Hongkong merely as the means to an end in making a social party a success.

Possibly the essential difference between local dancers and those in London and the provincial English towns was that the latter were keen enough and willing to study the art. In Hongkong, the essentials of dancing were treated somewhat more casually.

There was a distinct difference in the type of dancing seen in the Hongkong hotels and the cabarets. The American influence had largely grafted itself into the cabarets, where extreme forms of rhythmic expression were more popular than the English fundamentals of easy and graceful movement, with their attendant technique.

Mr. Andrew found in the bands a good average standard of playing. Most of the orchestras demonstrated a nice sense of rhythm, and their ensemble numbers were invariably well rendered.

TO OPEN SCHOOL.

Miss Ursula Preston confessed that she was charmed with Hongkong, and that her month's stay here had been extremely enjoyable. Both she and Mr. Andrew are looking forward to their return, which will probably be made next Spring.

Andrew and Ursula, as they have become to be known in Hongkong, leave for Shanghai and Japan to-morrow. In Tokyo they will open the "Sylvester School of Ballroom Dancing," by arrangement with Mr. Victor Sylvester.

PUT ON THE SPOT BY HONGKONG

HAYWARD & PEREIRA SUCCESSES

Minu's Clever Bowling Upsets Visitors

H.K. CONSOLIDATE

(By R. ABBIT.)

WHEN play ceased for the day on Saturday Hongkong were in a good position though there was nothing epoch-making about it.

Nor did the start yesterday warrant any undue excitement. Each batsman got a four and then the innings closed for two hundred and forty runs. A pretty useful score though not a mammoth one.

Its chief value lay in the fact that it consolidated the success in winning the toss. Few, I imagine, were sufficiently optimistic to expect the developments which actually happened. The start was certainly not sensational. But, when the visitors went in to bat things started to happen, and continued to happen for some time.

AN APPALING START.

The start was sensational. Beck sent down a good one on the leg stump and one of the two best Shanghai batsmen was out first ball.

The practical advantage was great. The moral advantage was enormous.

Owen Hughes had come to the conclusion, and I think rightly, that Garthwaite, with a completely new ball was a different bowler to Garthwaite with one which had lost its shine.

He only bowled six overs but he got his wicket. Simpson had hit him nicely to leg for four, and bably the best ball of the match. A very fast one, it pitched on the off stick and just took the leg ball, 48-5-1.

THE LAST STAND.

After the resumption the last real stand was made. Jenkins hung on against Pereira and Minu while Leach seemed supremely at ease save for one dangerous flick over slip's head.

But Minu was bowling better than he has done before, and the moment Jenkins tried to hit him, a hard drive to cover was neatly taken by T. A. Pearce. Thereafter, Leach alone did anything.

Hayward at first slip was excellent and took first a quick chance off Minu to send Maly-hew back and then by a brilliant bit of anticipation held a tremendously fast snick by Leach off Pereira almost behind the wicket-keeper.

Leach played magnificently, bagging the howling as much as possible, but Minu bowled T. Mador and then Dunkley whipped off the balls

I venture to think in that case we were lucky as I—with all deference—doubt very much the wisdom of a course which might have left us with well over a hundred to get on a fourth innings.

As it was, we have made quite a satisfactory score but during the last two hours the wicket showed distinct signs of wear, and a nasty spot seems to have developed at the Law-Courts end, just where it will help Beck and Pereira.

I might mention here that the match will be played to a finish.

HONGKONG'S SECOND KNOCK.

Our usual pair opened and Hayward's damaged finger which had been carefully strapped seemed to steady him.

Although Fincher was soon out, caught at short leg in hooking a short 'un which cocked up, we never seemed in danger of a collapse, as Hayward kept an end going steadily, playing good and watchful cricket.

True, it was slow. But, as the match is to be played out, it was good policy.

JENKINS BOWLS WELL.

Leach's first change at the Yard end was to put on Jenkins who bowled off-spinners on the middle stump with four short legs. He managed to keep the batsmen guessing a little, to judge from the angles at which the ball left the hand, but on occasions, but it was some time before Pearce was caught at the wicket off one to which he turned right round.

Williams came in and seemed at home at once. He hit three good fours but then jumped in to drive and was clean bowled (69-3-14).

THE SCORE DOUBLED.

But there the Shanghai successes finished for the time. Their bowlers kept an excellent length and prevented much scoring but they could not get a wicket.

Garthwaite was playing a nice game and would have scored more than double his runs but for the fact that all his best shots went straight to hand.

Leach had a very long spell at the Naval Yard end, during which Hayward completed his fifty with a pretty off drive. The score had been doubled.

TWO QUICK WICKETS.

Minu was sent in to force the pace off presumably tired bowling but, after a very nice four and a couple of big singles, he tried to hit Leach and sent a skied ball back to the bowler. (148-5-6.)

Owen Hughes came in for the last five minutes but after scoring a single he was bowled by a particularly good off-break from Torry which spun off very fast and broke from the off to the leg.

THE PRESENT POSITION.

Hongkong are thus in the enviable position of being two hundred and eighty six runs on with four wickets to go, and with a pitch that is showing distinct signs of wear.

Hayward is still not out and there is quite a reasonable chance of another fifty runs, although I sincerely hope Shanghai will have half an hour's batting before then.

Normally, one would have expected to see runs scored much faster in the last hour, but the fact is that the bowling never got loose or lost a length.

BANK DEFEATED IN KEEN RUGBY MATCH

OPPORTUNITIES LOST

(By "Line-Out").

The South Wales Borderers beat the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank in a rugby match at Sookunpoo yesterday by two tries (six points) to nil.

The bank were a little unlucky to lose, as they pressed for three parts of the game, but they lacked finish and several passing movements were spoilt by faulty handling.

The Bank forwards, amongst whom King was very prominent, heeled well and gave their backs plenty of chances.

Martin, the Borderers fast winger, scored in the initial half, when he made a dash for the line and flung himself over when half tackled by King.

DRAWN MATCH AT VALLEY

NAVY TEAMS IN OPPOSITION

Some keenly contested exchanges yesterday resulted from the friendly rugby match between the Officers and Ship's Company of H.M.S. Medway and H.M.S. Herwick at Happy Valley. The final score of a goal and a try (8 pts.) each being a fair indication of the run of play.

The Medway were only able to field 14 men, one of their players being unable to turn out at the last minute.

The Herwick commanded the play during the opening stages of the first half, and opened the scoring through Williamson who, taking a running pass, went over for a try. Masters added the extra points. The Medway got away soon after, and Lieut. Miers, following a brilliant run, touched down for Lieut. Donald to convert. Before half time the Herwick again took the lead through Corp who scored an unconverted try.

FINE PASSING MOVEMENTS.

The play in the first half was featured by some brilliant passing movements in which Lieut. Miers, Lieut. Sinclair and Terry were conspicuous.

After the interval, the Medway stood their ground against the concerted attacks by the opposing forwards, and Terry, picking up in

RIFLE SHOOTING SUCCESS

DONEGALL BADGE CONTEST

J. H. Denby won the National Rifle Association silver medal and the Donegall Badge in a local shoot organised by the Hongkong Rifle Club.

However, he had previously won the Donegall Badge, and is in possession of its attendant benefits to which the winner is entitled at Bialay, so that A. Chappelle, who came second in the competition was awarded the Donegall Badge, and Denby the silver medal.

The entries were disappointing only nine competitors putting in an appearance on Saturday. As a result no elimination contest was necessary. Weather conditions were ideal on Saturday, but on Sunday a rather gusty wind at the 600 mark made shooting a little difficult.

Full scores were:

GUY CHENG BEATEN BY GORDON LUM'S PUPIL

MISS COLLACO REACHES FINAL OF LADIES SINGLES

Shanghai, Nov. 10. Yesterday's play in the Shanghai open hard-court tennis championships provided only a few surprises for the spectators. The play was, on the whole, very good, perfect weather, and conditions giving the contestants every opportunity to do their best. With the tournaments approaching the finals, the contestants were more evenly matched than heretofore and all had to show their best to remain in the running.

Play started at 1 p.m. with Mrs. Lum and Miss Mao completing their match against Mrs. Capelini de Prisque and Miss Tavares, which was postponed the day before on account of darkness, with the score at 3-1 in the deciding set. With the lead against them, Mrs. Lum and Miss Mao surprised everyone by winning their match. The final score stood at 6-3, 2-6, 4-4.

In the best mixed doubles match to date, Mrs. Fischer and Miss de Maise defeated Mr. and Mrs. Lum by 6-1, 6-2.

The result was not unexpected, although Gordon Lum always is an opponent to fear. Perfect combination and heady play by the victors kept the game in hand, however, as Lum could not carry the whole game on his shoulders. Mrs. Lum is a fair player but was completely out-classed in yesterday's company. Mrs. Fischer and Miss de Maise have now reached the final round of this tournament. They are expected to give a very good account of themselves, many even looking on them as the possible winners in the final.

Mme. Meadmore and Khoo reached the semi-final round of the same tournament by disposing of Miss Rudge and Thorburn without undue difficulty. The score was 6-2, 6-1 in their favour. All indications point to this couple being the other finalists in this tournament.

GUY CHENG BEATEN.

A good singles match was seen in the men's semi-final round, when Yui defeated Guy Cheng by 6-3, 6-2.

GROUNDS AS TRACKS FOR RACING DOGS

A great swing-over from amateur to professional Rugby football is likely in Wales shortly.

It is proposed to have a chain of clubs with grounds which would be used also as greyhound tracks and eventually be floodlit.

A number of Welsh sportsmen have already interviewed prominent Rugby League authorities (the professional section of the game).

It is expected that link-up will be made with greyhound racing syndicates in Cardiff, Newport, Swansea, Merthyr, Pontypool, Pontypridd and Caerphilly, for the use of their grounds, which may, in time, be floodlit on lines similar to the White City, London.

WILLING TO TURN PROFESSIONAL.

There are many players in amateur Rugby clubs who would be prepared to go over to professionalism.

They would possibly receive £3 for a win, £2 for a drawn game and £1.10s. if their side lost. They would also be in a position to accept work through their club, which is not allowed in the amateur game.

The fact that some of the greyhound racing tracks are not attracting big crowds now is expected to influence the dog syndicates to support the proposal for a Welsh Rugby League.

Another proposal is the establishment of Rugby League clubs at such centres as Coventry, Leicester, Bristol, Plymouth and Gloucester, with some of the games played by floodlight.

swept the board in a tournament here to-day, winning all five matches—three singles and two doubles. F. J. Perry competed in both doubles.

The team are leaving for Sydney on Friday, where the first match against Australia will take place on November 30. In addition to Perry, the team consists of F. H. D. Wilde, G. P. Hughes, and H. G. N. Lee.—Reuter.

SCHMELING TO MEET BAER

TENTATIVE FIGHT FOR FEBRUARY

San Francisco, Nov. 7. Max Schmeling of Germany, one-time holder of the heavyweight title, and Max Baer, the youthful Livermore challenger, have been tentatively scheduled to meet in a return engagement here on February 22, it has been announced.

Max Schmeling, it was revealed, will fight King Levinsky, the former fish vendor, in Chicago before meeting Baer.

The Livermore lad won over Schmeling in the first meeting, in June this year, by a technical knockout.

Schmeling lost the title to Jack Sharkey in June last year. In September of the same year he tackled Mickey Walker, the Toy Bulldog, whom he disposed of in an eight-round technical kayo. Walker's fighting stock depreciated since then.

The monthly meeting of the Hongkong Football Association will be held on Monday, Nov. 20, at 5.30 p.m. in the Association's office, No. 9 Des Voeux Road.

This illustrates how E. C. Fincher scored his 81 runs against Shanghai last Saturday.

incidentally was seeing them well, when the next one swung in a bit and he was leg before.

Two runs later and Pereira's quickness and accurate throwing gave Beck a chance to run Pat Mador out, and he took it. Three down for twelve, and a very good three too!

Leach came in and started to play one of the best—if not largest—innings he has ever played upon this ground. Both a thoroughly sound bat, stood by his skipper, and it looked as though the disastrous start might be retrieved, as thirty-four runs were added.

A GOOD CHANCE.

But here the wisdom of including two fast bowlers in the side was shown. Pereira went on and had both taken at third slip in his first over, while in the second he flicked down pro-

when Torry Wilson lifted his heel. Just before Leach, in hitting out, gave his only chance, a quick one to Hayward at slip, which was not accepted, as the fieldman got it on the top of a finger and split a nail very painfully.

A GOOD PERFORMANCE.

I think it is a fair criticism to say that the cheap dismissal of Shanghai was due to the really good bowling and fielding of the home side as the wicket seemed to be playing quite true so far.

It began to go to bits later, and Shanghai will have to bat on a very much more difficult pitch in their second innings. But I shall be agreeably surprised if we put them out as cheaply next time.

THAT FOLLOW-ON.

Shanghai had just made enough to give the follow-on, which would, I am told, have been enforced.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Once Joe Anton had been a third-rate pug. Now he owns one of the most exclusive speakies in the West 60's, wears $20 silk monogrammed shirts and fresh gardenias every day, takes daily lessons in English, and aspires to the attention of a Park Avenue girl. And that's where trouble comes in! This Joe Anton, as played by George Raft in "Night After Night," the screen version of a story by Louis Bromfield, which opens on Thursday at the Queen's Theatre is a fellow of infinite charm. To his natural magnetism he adds the unfailing appeal of the boy who has never grown up. That's why, as Leo, his pal, points out, his women always come back. It's a fine role for Raft, but it is finer than his performance. Constance Cummings adds greatly to her constantly growing artistic stature in the role of The Lady. Wynne Gibson, one of the most genuinely talented young actresses on the Paramount lot, draws a vivid picture of Iris, the girl discarded for the Park Avenue Lady. Mae West, in her first screen role, practically walks off with the picture every time she swings her big, genial Maudie—Maudie out of Joe's past—before the camera. And as if three leading women were not enough there is also Allison Skipworth as Miss Jollyman, the middle-aged school teacher, who is teaching Joe how to be a gentleman. Under the able direction of Archie Mayo, these talented players have succeeded in making the film constantly amusing and entertaining. It is not without its dramatic and stirring—but in the long run, its comedy triumphs. The dinner which Joe gives for Miss Park Avenue touches a high point in dramatic comedy.

"The Eagle and The Hawk"

"The Eagle and The Hawk," story of two wartime flyers who become heroes under the stress of their hatred for each other, is now showing at the Queen's Theatre. Frederic March, Gary Grant, Carole Lombard and Jack Oakie play the leading roles in the film, which is from a story by John Monk Saunders, author of "Wings." Stuart Walker directed the production. The story centres around a pilot in the Royal Flying Corps who handles his plans with exceptional brilliance and an observer equally as skilful with his guns. But though they are the best of combinations in the sky they are the bitterest of enemies on the ground. The brilliance that makes the pilot expert is based on his casual, reckless attitude. The skill that makes the observer expert is based on his cold delight in killing. Pilot hates observer for his ruthlessness; observer hates pilot for his sensitiveness. It is when the observer discovers that the pilot has begun to crack under the strain that the story takes a new twist. March is cast as the pilot and Grant as the observer. Oakie as another pilot, furnishes comedy interest.

NEW AIR ATTACHE.

HEALTH IMPROVES AS DEPARTURE NEARS

It is now definitely announced that he will leave for China on December 8.—Reuter.

since they were seen in "Paddy, The Next Best Thing." It opens to-day at the King's Theatre. In this film, Gaynor and Baxter respond to the popular demand for more pictures in which they are both featured. And the roles they portray are the type which give each of them their greatest opportunities thus far. Miss Gaynor is a young, implish cloven, who adds a strong dash of rogueship to her famous wistfulness and thereby creates a new kind of character for herself. Baxter has the part of a big-hearted fellow who, much as he may try, cannot help falling head over heels for her. Walker Connolly, highly reputed player of the dramatic stage, has a featured role in support of Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter. Others in the cast include Harvey Stephens, Margaret Lindsay, Mary McCormack, Joseph M. Kerrigan, Fluke O'Hara, Claire McDowell, Merle Tottenham, Roger Imhof and Trevor Bland.

Jeanne Stuart is one of the loveliest actresses on the British stage and screen. And, what is more, one of the luckiest. She is an enchanting girl for whom everything is coming true. Health is here and beauty; she has won success behind the glamorous footlights and on the silver screen; and recently a young, handsome and wealthy suitor has laid his heart and his fortune at her feet. "I feel so excited," she told a Press representative before she started on her three months' honeymoon in South America. "I feel just as though I were stepping on dreams." Jeanne's "Fairy Prince" husband is Mr. Howard Duddley Docker, a thirty-five year old "city" man who is director of the Midland Bank, the Metropolitan Railway, Thomas Cook & Son, and numerous other companies. But Mrs. Docker does not intend to retire from the stage and screen, which is welcome news to her countless admirers. She is one of the few actresses who are equally at home both in sympathetic and "rump" roles. One of Jeanne's finest performances was in Drury's famous play "After All," since when she has played on the screen in sympathetic parts opposite Tom Walls. Her last film part before her marriage was in "The Shadow," which is at the King's Theatre on Wednesday.

GIGANTIC ARMAMENTS RACE LOOMS IN THE PACIFIC

Labour Accuses British Policy

KEEN DEBATE IN COMMONS

FEAR OF JAPANESE AGGRESSION

LONDON, NOV. 13.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF A GIGANTIC ARMAMENTS RACE IN THE PACIFIC HAS BEGUN BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND JAPAN, PARTLY AS A RESULT OF BRITISH NAVAL PREPARATIONS, ACCORDING TO LABOUR M.P.s WHO ATTACKED THE GOVERNMENT'S DISARMAMENT POLICY TO-NIGHT.

A somewhat sensational announcement was made during the debate to the effect that Mr. Arthur Henderson is on the verge of resigning the office of President of the Disarmament Conference.

It was at first understood that Mr. Henderson had already decided to take the step, but Sir Stafford Cripps read a message from the Geneva correspondent of the Daily Herald in which Mr. Henderson stated that he had not decided to resign, but felt that unless the present very unsatisfactory situation was changed, he could not continue as President of the Conference.

MR. HENDERSON DISAPPOINTED

The Labour Party's vote of censure on the Government's disarmament policy provided a keenly interesting debate.

The Labour proposals included the total abolition of all weapons prohibited to Germany, international control of aviation, suppression of the private manufacture of arms, and the creation of an international police force.

FAR EASTERN FEARS.

Mr. Wallhead, one of the principal Labour spokesmen, asserted that Australia and New Zealand, after conferring with Canada and the Imperial Defence Committee, had begun to strengthen their defences on their Japanese side against possible attack.

He pointed to the fact that British warships (a destroyer flotilla) had been ordered to Australia to strengthen their defences.

He declared that as a result of this policy, Japan and the United States had begun a gigantic armaments race.

TRAGEDY OF DISARMAMENT.

Sir Stafford Cripps, commenting on Mr. Arthur Henderson's expression of disappointment, declared that the statement showed that the Disarmament Conference had failed.

In the opinion of the Labour Party, said Sir Stafford, the tragedy of the Disarmament Conference really started with the Sino-Japanese dispute.

WRONG POLICY.

The Government pursued entirely the wrong policy in regard to Japan's invasion of Manchuria. The Government should have adopted a positive policy and should have urged the League to take immediate steps upon the entry of Japanese troops into Manchuria.

The re-armament of the United States and the action of Australia and New Zealand in strengthening their armaments all arose from the refusal of the British Government to initiate action against Japan.

EUROPEAN PROBLEM.

Sir John Simon, replying, declared that it was completely fallacious to suppose that the other Powers were attempting to impose upon Germany in the first instance what had been called a trial period.

He emphasised that all other countries, under the British Convention, would be bound not to increase their armaments and France would effect a very considerable reduction in her military strength.

The Government still hoped that German equality might be established by cutting down other armaments as closely as possible to the present German level. The Government would do its utmost to secure an international disarmament agreement.

MOTION DEFEATED.

The vote of censure was defeated by 409 votes to 54, the members of the Samuel group of Liberals abstaining from voting.

The official spokesman did not reply to Labour's interpretation of events in the Far East.—Reuter.

U. S. NAVAL PLANS.

A Havas message from Washington states that the U.S. Government is to submit to the Congress, at its next session, construction plan now being prepared by the Navy Department. This will provide for the renovation of the fleet and for bringing it by 1939 up to the level authorised by the London Naval Treaty.

The Navy Department fears, in fact, that under existing political circumstances, created by the attitude of Japan, it will not be possible to hold the session of the Naval Conference in 1935 and, therefore demands credits from 90 to 100 million dollars for the construction of new ships, mainly cruisers and aircraft-carriers, as well as 25 million dollars a year for the replacement of warships which have reached the age limit.

1934 PROGRAMME.

To these credits will be added $238,000,000 already obtained from the public works fund, as well as others which the Navy Department is seeking to obtain for the modernisation of antiquated ships. The building programme for 1934 will comprise the construction of one aircraft-carrier and a number of cruisers armed with six-inch guns up to the limit of five units. The programme provides also for an increase of effectives by 20,000 men.

JAPANESE ATTITUDE.

Meanwhile the Japanese Navy Office is closely watching the attitude of the Ministry of Finance towards the second naval replenishment programme, which is now being considered. The Navy Office considers it absolutely necessary to execute the replenishment with a view to supplementing the defects of the London Naval Treaty, as well as to guard against any serious international crisis that may confront the nation in future.

If the Finance Ministry should refuse to give its full-fledged support to the programme, the Navy authorities will strive energetically for the realisation of the scheme. It is generally believed.

While some are inclined to think that the return of the U.S. fleet to the Atlantic next year will relieve the ominous atmosphere prevailing on the Pacific, it is the opinion of the Japanese naval authorities that the temporary movement of a fleet cannot be taken as indicating change in one country's policy towards another, and the decision of the U.S. Government will not influence the projected programme.

LONDON, NOV. 13.

The Labour vote of censure in the Commons was moved in order to ventilate the proposals adopted at the Labour Party Conference recently held at Hastings. The motion was submitted by Mr. Morgan Jones, who after contending that the strong desire of the British people for an international agreement on disarmament had not been reflected in the Government policy at Geneva, said he cordially admitted that the draft convention put forward at the conference by this country was the first definite scheme to be produced and that although it was not perhaps so advanced as he could have desired, it was one worthy of full discussion.

PREMIER'S SPEECH.

The Prime Minister, who remarked that half the contents of the vote of censure had been borrowed from the draft convention, said that that convention had not been abandoned and remained the basis of the Geneva deliberations. If disarmament was to be attained there must, he said, be an international agreement, including Germany. In end there had to be such an agreement. The British Government were in close touch with France, Italy, and the other nations, especially the small European nations who had a great stake in this question.

NOT ANTI GERMAN.

"We ask Germany to come in not at the end but now," said Mr. MacDonald. "We want Germany to be its own representative and its own spokesman. The exchanges of views and the conversations to which I have referred are not anti-German but pro-European. They are not to punish, but to establish peace." The problems we are trying to solve, the way we are trying to find in this engagement of propaganda and expectation, of despair and hope, is the way to enable us to enable the Governments of Europe and the League of Nations to establish peace in Europe.

LEAGUE STATUS.

"Whatever form these conversations may take, it cannot involve any weakening of our loyalty to the League of Nations nor any diminution of its status or authority."

"If there is anyone who says that in order to deal with the present difficulties we should be asked to join in the destruction of the only existing machine for international co-operation, a machine for which no alternative has ever been proposed, our reply is 'No.'"

"As to the disarmament conference, we cannot admit that because Germany has withdrawn from it, that the work of disarmament ought not to go on."

NO FINALITY.

"Germany's withdrawal has unquestionably greatly complicated the work of the conference and necessarily involves consideration of ways and means and methods, and it would be quite unreasonable to ask the Government now and today its final view of all these questions."

ARMAMENT INTERESTS.

London, Nov. 13. Sir Herbert Samuel dwelt on the power of armament interests. He urged the nations to make an offer which Germany could really be expected to accept. Germany's departure from the League could and should be reversed. The Government's policy should be directed to securing the return of Japan to the League, the entry of Russia and eventually of the United States.

HEATED SCENE.

In moving the vote of censure, Mr. Morgan Jones aroused a heated scene by alleging that Japanese policy in the Far East was encouraged not deliberately but inferentially by the British Government and Conservative leaders. He made specific mention of Mr. Amery and Sir Austen Chamberlain. Sir Austen indignantly repudiated the suggestion, while Mr. Ramsay MacDonald strongly protested against the statement that the Government had encouraged Japan, which, he stated, was not true.—Reuter.

SHANGHAI'S SPLENDID FIGHT AGAINST ODDS

Simpson, but it was disallowed. Beck was coming off very fast, but was not troubling the batsmen much. He was not bowling straight enough on the wicket to do that. Garthwaite kept a good length and the batsmen failed to score more than singles. The 10 was hoisted after nine minutes' play.

CLEVER DUNKLEY.

Shanghai would have had many more runs had it not been for Dunkley's wicket-keeping. Beck was inclined to bowl to the leg and was bumping awkwardly but Dunkley took all his deliveries well.

As both batsmen were showing signs of settling down, Owen Hughes took off Garthwaite and put on Minu. Pereira also took over from Beck, and sent down a "maiden" over. At this stage, the luncheon interval was taken, the score being 10 runs for no wicket. Shanghai's innings had been in progress for 21 minutes. Simpson had eight and Stokes seven.

TWO SURVIVALS.

After lunch, Minu went on from the Supreme Court end, and in his first over, Simpson hit him for a two, and survived a confident appeal for l.b.w.

At the other end, Stokes also survived an appeal for obstruction. He tried to pull a short one from Pereira and missed, the ball hitting his leg fairly high. This over was a maiden. Four byes off Minu sent up the 20 which was reached in 38 minutes.

After Pereira had sent down another maiden over to Stokes, Simpson hit Minu for a four to the Chater Road railings to reach his 10 in 36 minutes.

Both batsmen played cautious cricket, especially to Pereira who in four overs gave away only one run.

STOKES SHAKY.

Stokes seemed rather shaky against Pereira, and was completely beaten by the fast bowler, but the ball always missed the stumps.

At 28, Owen Hughes changed Minu for Pereira, who met with almost immediate success. Simpson played his second delivery just a bit too soon, and nicked the ball to Dunkley for a catch.

Simpson's score was 10. Joining Stokes, Pat Madar opened his account off the first ball sent down to him by Pereira, cutting it to third man for two.

THIRTY UP.

Madar's two hoisted after 30, which was reached after 45 minutes' play.

With two off Pereira, Stokes got into double figures. Bowling to Stokes, Pereira changed his delivery to round the wicket. Stokes hit him for a four and survived his second appeal for obstruction.

As Pereira had no outfield, Stokes was not afraid to hit him. He sent him to the railings for three fours in succession, reaching his 20 in 61 minutes and sending up the 50.

Beck now came on for Pereira, and Stokes hit his third delivery for a four. Altogether six runs were conceded in this over. Stokes was now in an aggressive mood, and spread up his rate of scoring. He reached his 30, having been at the wicket for 65 minutes.

SIXTY UP.

Another trial was given to Garthwaite, who went on from the Supreme Court end. A single by Stokes signalled the 60, which was hoisted after 66 minutes.

Madar got into double figures after scoring two runs off Beck, Minu saving what looked like a certain boundary. Although he was bowling very fast, Beck had no length at all. The batsmen did not appear troubled, and Stokes pulled him for a four to reach his 40, made in 76 minutes. This raised the 70.

STOKES SCORES FREELY.

Hitting every loose ball hard, Stokes was doing most of the scoring. Madar was content to keep his end up and scoring an occasional run. The score was now 80, and Shanghai seemed to be making a great effort to make the required runs for victory.

Unfortunately for their hopes, Madar got out in the next over. Pereira was put on from the Naval Yard end, and Madar was given marching orders for obstruction. Madar seemed to have also touched the ball with his bat, and Dunkley was making a vain effort to hold the ball when the decision was given. The score-board showed 82-16. Nothing seemed to be able to trouble Stokes now. A four off

MODERN GIRLS

LORD HORDER'S

TRIBUTE: HYPOCRISY

Lord Horder, speaking in London paid a glowing tribute to the modern girl. He said:

"You hear a good deal to-day from the older generation about the terrible manners and customs of the young. Bellow me, the girl of to-day is fundamentally very much the same as the girl of my young days."

"If your parents are shocked by your independence, you can be quite sure that the parents of those days were equally shocked by the independence of your mothers and aunts."

"The girl of to-day is a healthy, clean-limbed, open-air girl."

"It might have shocked a previous generation to see a girl wear a bathing-suit that she can carry in a handbag. But if the blushing modesty of the Nineteenth Century has gone, gone too is the smirking hypocrisy that was a characteristic of that age."

There was far more enjoyment and happiness for a far greater number of people than when he was young.

To a suggestion that as founder of the Anti-Noise League he might be out to suppress modern dance music, Lord Horder replied that modern rhythms would have sounded barbarous to Victorian ears, but the young people of to-day would have been outraged by the languid sentimentality of the old waltzes.

"The Blue Danube" of those days was a very slow-flowing river; you have made it a torrent."

Pearce sent up the 90, and a two off Minu, who had come on, gave Stokes his 50, which was reached in 91 minutes.

Stokes sent up the 100 off a two from Minu. He hit the left-hand bat, but Finch on well to save two runs. The three figures were reached after 97 minutes.

BOOTH CAUTIOUS.

Booth sat on the splic and allowed Stokes to take most of the bowling. He, like Madar before him, was content to keep his end up.

Although he was not giving away many runs, Minu was too short to be really dangerous. It was no surprise, therefore, when Owen Hughes took him off after three overs, and put Pereira on. The fast bowler gave away seven runs.

STOKES OUT.

In Pearce's next over, Stokes had very bad luck to be given out leg before wicket. The ball hit him rather high up on the thigh, but the Hongkong umpire, Mr. P. E. Baskett, gave him marching orders. He had scored 69 in an attractive manner. The score was 116-59.

Pereira was not bowling as well as he was in the first spell. He was short and Booth pulled him for a four to raise the 120 in 110 minutes.

The complexion of the game changed completely in Pereira's next over. Leach, who was at the wicket, touched one of his expressions and sent a catch to Dunkley. The Shanghai skipper had scored only two. The score-board showed 123-4-2.

Jenkins now joined Booth, and did most of the scoring. The 130 went up in 119 minutes, and the 140 followed soon after. Jenkins reached double figures with a four off Pearce.

Owen Hughes now decided to have a turn with the ball himself, and gave away a single in his first over.

AND BOOTH.

Beck now went on from the other end, and off his first ball Jenkins was nearly sent back. Booth hit the ball to cover and Jenkins was already half way down the ditch, but Pearce threw in to Dunkley, who sent the ball back to the other end. Jenkins just managed to scramble home.

Shanghai could not avert disaster however. Booth hit the ball to Minu and called for a run. Picking the ball up in his stride, Minu threw the wicket down with Booth still out of his crease. The score was 147-5-21.

Before the end of Beck's over, Jenkins lost another wicket. Jenkins being worked by Beck without any addition to the score. Jenkins had 10.

The 150 was hoisted in 141 minutes. A four off

IRISH REPUBLIC IN FIVE YEARS

Mr. de Valera Gives a Pledge

The United Press quotes Mr. de Valera as pledging himself to the establishment of a fully-fledged Irish Republic within five years. Mr. de Valera made the pledge in the course of a speech in Dublin, when he declared his willingness to co-operate with Britain, but would not yield to coercion.

THE RESTAURANT MORTGAGE CASE

MR. ELDON POTTER'S SUBMISSIONS

The appeal by mortgagees of the property of the now liquidated Chinese Restaurant Company against a decision of the Chief Justice, Mr. J. R. Wood, which disallowed an extension of time for registration of the mortgage and further charge, was continued at the Supreme Court this morning before a Full Court of appeal. Five of the leading barristers of the Colony are engaged in the litigation which arises from the failure of a firm of solicitors to make the registration at the Land Office within the stipulated five weeks.

The mortgage and further charge secured advances of $422,500 and Messrs. T'ao and Hodgson applied successfully early this year for an extension of time to make the registration.

In May, however, on the motion of an unsecured creditor who had advanced $64,000 to the Chinese Restaurant, this order was set aside as a nullity and also on the ground that it was obtained from the Court without the full exhibition of all the material facts and it is against this setting aside that the present appeal is made.

The Full Court of Appeal consisted of the Chief Justice Mr. P. Grant, Jones, Judge of the Supreme Court of China, and the Puisne Judge, Mr. R. E. Lindell. Appellants were Au Wing-ki and Au Wing-yun, of 26 Des Voeux Road Central, Victoria, and they were represented by Mr. H. G. Sheldon and Mrs. Leo D'Almada, Jrs., barristers, instructed by Messrs. T'ao and Hodgson.

Chu Yun-chi, widow, of No. 1, Wood Rd., Victoria, the respondent, was represented by Mr. Eldon Potter, K. C., Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K. C., and Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Messrs. Woo and Nash.

Continuing his argument today Mr. Potter submitted that Messrs. T'ao and Hodgson had no authority, direct or implied, to make the application for an extension of time although he emphasised that he was quite prepared to believe that they thought that they were legally entitled to do so.

He felt that the "M.I.G. Trust Case" which was cited as an authority really went to establish that the unsecured creditor was not entitled to consideration by the court when granting an order for extension of time; but it did not apply when such an order was a nullity, and he traversed the submission of Mr. Sheldon that his client had no authority to have the order set aside.

The solicitors had purported to act for the Company because the essence of their application was urgency and if they had made it for the mortgagees (for whom, however, they were doing legal work) they would have had to serve the company with a notice and that might have resulted in a winding up petition.

Mr. Jenkin also addressed the court on the subject of respondent's right to have the order set aside.

MANY AMATEURS THROUGH

LONDON, NOV. 13.

The draw for the first round proper of the English Football Association Cup—the world's premier soccer competition—was made in London this evening.

Teams of the northern and southern sections of the Third Division went into the hat together with some of the well known Amateur League clubs, as well as Southern League and Kent League teams.

Of the better known amateur clubs, five enjoy home draws. Ilford entertain Swindon, Kingstonian receive Bristol City, Cheltenham have Barnet as visitors, Gillingham have to travel to Oxford City, and Dulwich Hamlet are at home to Newport.

KENT LEAGUE TEAM.

London Paper Mills, the team which in its first year, is setting the Kent League alight, have a good draw, being at home to Southend.

A thrilling match will be seen at Northfleet, where the Kent League side will receive Dartford, who are also enjoying a good season in the Southern League.

Hayes and Epsom Town, two other amateur clubs, have to make journeys, Hayes going to Bourne-mouth to meet the Third Division team and Epsom visiting Clapton Orient.

Among the clashes between first class teams, the most interesting include Northampton and Exeter at Northampton, Crystal Palace and Norwich at the Palace, Watford and Reading on the former's enclosure, and Cardiff City and Aldershot.

Some equally keen matches are promised among the Northern clubs, where league records are likely to count for very little.

"HALLUCINATION"

France Fears for Safety of Versailles

Paris, Nov. 13.
"Collective hallucination" sums
up the French opinion of the German elections. It was admirable that 2,000,000 persons dared to vote against the goose-step, says
Le Journal.

Complete abolition of the Versailles Treaty is feared by some papers, which ask is Mr. Mac-Donald still determined to abandon the treaty?
There is considerable despondency in the press comment. It is generally believed that Herr Hitler's peace speech Friday was intended for British and Italian consumption and it is feared that Italy may turn to Berlin and forsake Geneva.—Reuter.

Geneva Surprise.

Geneva, Nov. 13.
There is mild surprise here at the number of "No" votes cast at the German election in respect to the Versailles.
Conciliatory action is now expected to enable Italy to continue her plans for meeting the Powers.
—Reuter.

Austria's Reaction.

Vienna, Nov. 13.
It is feared in some quarters
that the Hitler triumph may encourage the Austrian Nazis to attempt a putsch.

The fifteenth anniversary of the Republic passed quietly in Vienna
and the provinces, apart from a Socialist demonstration in Vienna,
in which the police used their batons and Hugo Thaler, Socialist
vice-president in the Lower Austrian Diet, was hurt. Forty
Socialists were arrested.—Reuter.

Victory for Fascism?

Rome, Nov. 13.
There were no papers this morning.

Italians generally hail the result of the victory for Hitler as an indication of sympathy for the Fascist idea in Europe.—Reuter.

New York Comment.

New York, Nov. 13.
This is just one more tribute to the German people, paid under the ruthless regimentation of opinion, says the Herald-Tribune.
—Reuter.

NEW CUSTOMS BARRIERS

TO STOP JAPANESE DUMPING

Peking, Nov. 14.
It is learned that as a result of recent negotiations with General Okamura, Vice-Chief of Staff of the Kwantung Army, the Chinese authorities have decided to create Customs stations at Shanhaikwan, Kupelkow, Hsienkungow, Lengkow, Yehyuen, Chalingkow and Panchiakow, under the direct control of the Chinese maritime Customs authorities.
The sole object in establishing these Customs stations along the Great Wall, according to an official explanation, is to prevent the dumping of Japanese goods into China and does not mean the de facto recognition of a boundary line along the Great Wall. It is purely an economic expediency.
The Chinese Maritime Customs authorities are sending a high official to North China to investigate the condition of the above-mentioned points as a preliminary to the establishment of these stations.—Central News Agency.

LUANTUNG CHAOS

REWARD OFFERED FOR "OLD RAT"

A reward of $3,000 has been offered for the arrest of "Old Rat" and three other leaders of the Luantung bandits. The Magistrate of Peking, who was appointed by the bandits after the fall of the city, has been executed. The artillery unit which shelled the town has returned to Tientsin.—Reuter.

CREDIT CRISIS THREATENING

U.S. ADMINISTRATION'S DIFFICULTIES

New York, Nov. 13.
Washington observers see the Government approaching a credit crisis with currency inflation nearer and dollar devaluation certain.

Government bonds were stronger to-day, but their position is daily becoming more critical. Negotiations between representatives of Russia and the United States are continuing. This has had a steady effect on the markets.

In expectation of impending inflation, farmers are refusing to cut their acreage which would enable them to take advantage of the 10 cents government loan. They feel that if they reduce their plantings that they will not receive the full benefit of the expected rise in commodity prices.

Unemployment and public works are at present the most important problems which the Government has to face and effort along these lines is being intensified.

Generally, business is slowly improving.—Per Swan, Culbertson and Fritz.

JOCKEY MOTORIST FINED

DISOBEYED TRAFFIC SIGNAL

B. A. Proulx, the well-known local jockey, was fined $20 by Mr. Hamilton at the Central Magistracy this morning, on a summons for disobeying a traffic signal at the junction of Morrison Gap Road and Stubbs Road. The defendant was not present in Court and sent a representative with a letter explaining that he was very busy, and admitting the offence.

Traffic-Sub-Inspector Nicol said there were four cars going towards the Valley. A taxi followed the three cars which turned right to go up Stubbs Road. Just as the taxi turned right, the defendant's car came up and both had to stop to avoid a collision. A European lady was in the taxi, and she was very upset.
